PREFACE.

This volume contains an account of the family or families named in the title page and of their descendants. The full work, in five parts, contains all that is known to the compiler concerning the Clark, Parks, Brockman and Dean families and their descendants, his ancestors and kindred; and of the Davis and Goss families and their descendants, the ancestors and kindred of his beloved wife, now deceased.

The separate parts are: No. I. The Clark Family; No. II. The Parks Family; No. III. The Brockman and Dean Families; No. IV. The Davis Family, and No. V. The Goss Family.

He engaged in the work with no intention of publishing it, but instead he intended simply to leave a manuscript copy to his children. After many inquiries as to his purpose, and with expressions of desire from many persons to possess a copy, he determined to publish it in book form. He so announced, enlarged the scope, invoked the aid of his friends, and has devoted much time and patient labor collecting information for use in its preparation. The work has assumed proportions greatly beyond his expectation.

The chronology of persons and families has had special attention. This, however, is not the highest function of genealogy, valuable though it be in tracing and proving a line of descent and relationship, but it is the preserving and presenting to our contemplation the lives and real character of our ancestors and kindred. This has been kept prominent and becomes therefore an interesting feature of the work.

Each of the several parts of the work comprises a distinct line, and the persons are named in the order of birth, so far as the facts were obtainable. In some of the parts eight generations are accounted for.

There is a system of reference by numbers, thus enabling one with facility to trace the lineage and ascertain the exact relationship of any person named in the book with any other person. There are some remarkable genealogical tracings, degrees of relationship, the result of inter-marriage in related families, and some of these it will be found impracticable to define.

There are a number of pages arranged for continuing the family record in direct line of descent. Thus may be added many generations and so the work will become an heirloom of value in the coming centuries.

The work has been to the compiler a labor of love rather than profit. If he has succeeded in rescuing from oblivion the names and deeds of some of his ancestors and numerous kindred, he will in some measure be compensated for his arduous labor, and though his success has not been commensurate with his wishes and efforts, he trusts his labors have not been in vain. It is a matter of regret that not only the names of some but the deeds of many equally worthy have not been obtained for use in its preparation. He is greatly indebted, however, to his friends for the prompt manner in which many of them have responded to his request for information, and for words of cheer and encouragement, and to these is largely due whatever of success he has achieved. He wishes especially to acknowledge his obligation to his esteemed friend and kinswoman, Mrs. Alfred W. Parks, of Clifton, S. C., for information relating to the Parks family; to his friend, his wife's kinsman, Dr. J. D. Garrard, late of Birmingham, Ala., for information relating to the Davis and Goss families; to Dr. Thomas M. Owen, Director of the Department of Archives and History of Alabama, for courteous and generous aid in the preparation of the work; and finally to his very dear mother, but for whose intelligence and great strength of memory he should never have known so much of his ancestry and collateral kindred.

To his mother he dedicates the work in loving and tender memory and affection.

HENRY W. CLARK.

THE DAVIS FAMILY

FIRST GENERATION.

1.

JONATHAN<sup>1</sup> DAVIS, who was the founder of the Davis family in the United States of which the following account treats, was born in England about 1730, and came to America when quite young. We have more than one account of his early history. Dr. John D. Garrard, late of Birmingham, Ala., who was a great-grandson and who had devoted much time collecting information relating to his ancestry said:

"Jonathan Davis was born in England about 1730, and died in Wilkes Co., Ga., in Feb. or Mar., 1818. His father died when he was quite small and left him and a younger brother and perhaps one or two sisters, as well as his mother, who married again. The step-father treated the boys badly and Jonathan ran away when about twelve years old, and made his way to America."

Another story of his early life is that "he was captured off the coast of Wales when but a lad and brought to New York on a piratic tramp trading vessel and disposed of upon some terms to a New York merchant, who afterwards assisted him in making a start in life."

The earliest reliable account we have of Jonathan Davis was about the time of his marriage to Lucy Gibbs, a daughter of a prominent Va. family. They were married about 1756. Miss Gibbs was born about 1738 and died in Wilkes Co., Ga., about 1818.

Mr. Davis bought lands and settled in Orange Co., Va., where his children all grew up and were married before he left Va., and settled in Wilkes Co., about 1803. He gave his farm to his son William, who moved into the house with his parents some time before their death. (See copy of his will page 2.) Jonathan Davis and his wife were the parents of nine or more children. We find in his will that eight are named as legatees; we have no record of any others, but tradition has it that there were two other sons, Jonathan and Reuben. It is said Jonathan died of fever when about eighteen years old. Reuben must also have died young or in early manhood, as we have no account of descendants, and a perusal of the will discloses the fact that Jonathan Davis was scrupulously exact in distributing his property equally among his children. (See the will.) It is quite evident if he had other children than those named in his will they had died without living issue.

We find in Cathart's Baptist Encyclopedia a sketch of the life of his son, Rev. William Davis. He speaks of "the conversion of his parents, two other brothers, his youngest brother and several of his sisters." This seems pretty clearly to indicate there was at least one other son than those named in the will. Sons and daughters in the order named were:

2. i. JAMES<sup>2</sup>.
3. ii. MARY, b. about 1757; m. David Phillips.
4. iii. JOHN, b. about 1759; m. Mary Easton.
5. iv. WILLIAM, b. Jan. 7, 1765; m. Nancy Easton.
6. v. LUCY, b. —; m. — Goodall.
7. vi. MILDRED, b. —; m. Thomas Phillips.
8. vii. SUSANNAH, b. Oct., 1769; m. Benjamin Goss.
9. viii. ELIZABETH, b. about 1780; m. James Hitchcock.

COPY OF THE WILL OF JONATHAN DAVIS.

SECOND GENERATION.

2.

JAMES<sup>2</sup> DAVIS (1) being the first named in the will of his father, is supposed to have been first born. We have not been able to procure a copy of the family record of Jonathan Davis nor any account of the family and descendants of James Davis.

3.

MARY<sup>2</sup> DAVIS (1) was born in Va. and married David Phillips in her native State. They moved to the State of Ga., about 1803, and settled in Wilkes Co. Mrs. Miles J. Green, of Clanton, Chilton Co., Ala., writes Jan. 27, 1902: "I have often heard my mother say, that my grandparents, David and Mary Phillips, had sixteen children." We have an account of eleven. Order of birth conjectural:

- i. JAMES<sup>3</sup>.
- ii. WILLIAM.
- iii. JONATHAN.

- 10. iv. MATTHEW, b. 1796; m. ———.
- 11. v. REUBEN, b. Dec. 25, 1800; m. Mary B. Smart.
- 12. vi. NATHAN, b. ———; m. had children.
- vii. FANNIE, b. ———; m. Henderson.
- viii. MILLIE, } One of these m. Shackelford.
- ix. NANCY, }
- 13. x. MARY, b. ———; m. Jesse Wooten.
- 14. xi. ELIZABETH, b. ———; m. Thomas Baber.

4.

REV. JOHN<sup>2</sup> DAVIS (1) was born in Orange Co., Va., and married Mary Easton in Va. He was born about 1759 and died Oct. 9, 1831. He came to the State of Ga., in early manhood and was ordained to the ministry. He moved from Ga., to Franklin Co., Tenn., thence in 1816, to Franklin Co., Ala., settling at Russellville. He was the agent in God's hands in building up the churches that formed the Muscle Shoals Baptist Association.

Reuben E. Davis, his son, in his book Recollections of Mississippi and Mississippians, says:

"My father was one of the earliest settlers in this county (Russell Valley, Ala.). He was a man of limited means and though of strong and vigorous intellect, had only the imperfect education of the pioneers of that day. His chief study was the Bible and a few volumes of history which formed his only library. Although a Baptist Minister of high standing, he occupied himself during the week, with ordinary farm labor, and could never be induced to accept any compensation for his services in the church; this would have been according to his belief, 'serving the Lord for hire.' Both of my parents were born in Va. and remained there until ten children were added to their family. Then they moved to Tenn. and settled near Winchester, where I was the twelfth and last child born. When I was about five years old my father moved from Tenn. to North Ala.*

"My father did not allow his children to read the Bible, holding that it could only be studied with profit by those whose minds were fully matured and informed by experience. I was, however, taught that the world was exactly six thousand years old, and I believed it to a day; I was told that Adam was created out of the dust of the ground; and Eve out of a rib of Adam's side; I believed this too. I was informed that placed in a delightful garden they ate of the forbidden tree and thus came death and all our woe! All this I devoutly believed upon my father's testimony. My mother died when I was about twelve years old and the grief which this loss occasioned, shadowed my existence for years. She was a woman of great tenderness and sweetness of character and I was passionately devoted to her. Through my whole life I have carried the most affectionate memory of her in my heart."

Children:

* Mr. Davis moved from Va., to Ga., and thence to Tenn., and finally to Ala.

15.
  - i. JAMES<sup>3</sup>, m. Eliza Hill.
  - ii. CHARLES (Methodist), d. in Caldwell, Burleson Co., Tex.
  - iii. PHILIP, was thrown from a horse and killed in Mo.
  - iv. ZACHARIAH, was a Primitive Baptist Preacher, d. young.
  - v. GEORGE EVES, d. very young.
  - vi. JONATHAN, m. in Miss.
16. vii. WILLIAM, b. Sept. 24, 1804; m. A. M. F. Henderson.
17. viii. ELIZABETH, m. Leroy May.
- ix. JUDEA, m. McMichen.
  - x. LUCY, first wife of Dr. George Higgason.
  - xi. MARY, second wife of Dr. George Higgason.
19. xii. REUBEN E., twice m.

5.

REV. WILLIAM<sup>2</sup> DAVIS (1) was born in Va., Jan. 7, 1765, and married Nancy Easton, in Va., Miss Easton was born and reared in Philadelphia, Pa., and was a Quakeress, but later in life joined the Baptist Church. About 1793 Mr. Davis with his family, which was of considerable size, moved to the State of Ga., and settled in Wilkes Co. He was an excellent Baptist minister as well as four of his sons and many of his grandsons. We find in Campbell's Georgia Baptist, the following elaborate sketch of the life and ministerial work of Mr. Davis:

"Rev. William Davis was a native of Orange Co., Va., where he was born Jan. 7, 1765. His parents were poor but honest and respectable, and were members of the Episcopal Church. He became concerned about his soul at the early age of nine years. Two sermons which he heard about this time, one by an Episcopalian, the other by a Presbyterian, made a deep impression on his mind. The Baptist, then called 'newlights' commenced preaching in his native county about the same time. Much was said against them, as those who were 'turning the world up side down' which raised much anxiety in the mind of young Davis to hear them. The first opportunity of the kind he enjoyed was to hear an exhortation and prayer from one John Bledsoe. This served to deepen his religious impressions, and frequently at that tender age he was known to go forward voluntarily and ask the minister to pray for him. He continued serious by turns, until in his fourteenth (14) year, a conversation he had with a pious negro in his father's employment (a Baptist) fully awakened him to a sense of his lost condition as a sinner. For some six months, his mind was in great distress. During those days of darkness he went far and near, by day and by night, as far as lay in his power, to hear the gospel from the Baptist preachers, who were itinerating through the country. One night he went some four miles from his father's residence to attend a meeting held by Elijah Craig. During the service his feelings became such as to unnerve him, he swooned away, and remained in a helpless state for some time. In this condition the Lord brought him deliverance to his soul. He rose rejoicing, and began at once to exhort his fellow mortals to flee from the wrath to come. At this time his parents resided in Culpeper County, and were opposers and persecutors of the Baptists. William left the parental roof, rather unceremoniously perhaps, walked some fourteen or fifteen miles to a Baptist church in Orange Co., called Blue Run, where he was immersed in his fifteenth year.

"As soon as he had discharged this solemn duty, he returned home and submitted himself to his parents. Soon thereafter, being encouraged by his brethren, he was in the habit of exercising publicly in exhortation and prayer. These exercises were sanctified to the conversion of his parents, his two older brothers, his youngest brother and several of his sisters. All of these became Baptists and continued in the comfort of the Holy Ghost until their death. At sixteen years of age though much against the will of his friends, Mr. Davis, volunteered as a soldier of the Revolution, and was for some time under the command of General Lafayette. He was wounded in the head, suffered greatly from fatigue and hunger. While the Army of Lafayette was on a forced march to join Washington in the capture of Cornwallis, young Davis was without a morsel of food two whole days. This having come to the ears of the General, he was sent to his tent, and with his own hands he furnished the youthful soldier with food. This kindness, on the part of Lafayette, was remembered with gratitude all his life. He was heard to mention it during his last sickness. He was present at the surrender of Cornwallis, and after the war returned to his family, in Va., where he enjoyed the friendship and confidence of the Madisons, Barbours and other distinguished men of the State.

"In 1788, he was licensed to preach the gospel, while yet in his native State, and was ordained in Georgia by Dozier, Thornton and Thomas Maxwell in 1793. His education was quite limited, yet he was a man of strong mind, excellent memory, and a fine imagination. His manner was easy yet forcible. He was an original thinker, and his style of oratory was peculiar to himself—bold and energetic. His character was without spot or blemish, and his piety was of a high order. One fact proves that he lived the religion that he preached; eleven out of twelve children which he had, became worthy members of the church during their parent's life time; three of them preachers—Jonathan, James and Jesse and two others, Jephtha and William Deacons. As a pastor, he stood high with the church which enjoyed his watchful care. The church in the fork of Broad river (Elbert County), he served twenty years; that at Beaver dam twelve years; Clark's Station nine years, etc. He possessed the faculty of drawing out his brethren, who were called of God to the ministry; among those who raised up under him, were the following: E. Shakelford, Isaac Shuttle, Elijah Mosely, Isham Goss, James Holis and Sylvanus Gibson.

"In the middle of life Mr. Davis was a person of fine appearance, weighing upwards of two hundred pounds. He suffered much in after life from dropsy in the chest, and was so debilitated as to make it necessary that he should resign all pastoral charges, yet was in the habit of visiting the churches whenever he was able to ride, and when unable to stand, he would preach in a sitting posture. While thus standing on the borders of the tomb his ministry was greatly blessed. His farewell discourse to the people of Elbert Co. was delivered while he sat on a table in the open air, and such was the powerful effect produced, that it was regarded as the commencement of one of the most glorious revivals ever experienced in that county. He was decidedly favorable to ministerial education, and was one of the Board of Mount Enon Academy. He was opposed to the location, however, and always believed that that was the cause of its failure. The temperance cause never had a warmer friend. On this subject he addressed letters to the Sarepta and Georgia Associations, when too infirm to attend their sessions.

"For several months previous to his death he had a presentiment that his end was near—often spoke of it, and arranged all his worldly business with reference to it. All his children were invited to make him a last visit, and on doing so, he requested each of his sons to lay their hand on the scar on his head (the result of a wound he received in his youth while a soldier of the Revolution) and solemnly charged them severally to be faithful to their country's interest and glory. He was in attendance on a Methodist camp meeting some ten days before his death, when he was taken suddenly ill. His wife, who was absent on a visit, was sent for as also his children. When they arrived he told them the day and the hour he expected to depart hence and be with Christ. When that day arrived he spent a part of it in writing and to his friends present gave a circumstantial account of his early life. Some two or three hours previous to his exit he was in great pain and frequently called upon God for help. Of his son, Jonathan and James, who had not yet arrived, he spoke in a most affectionate manner. To his son, Isaac (the only one of his children not in the church), he made a most touching appeal to meet his aged father in heaven.

"After bidding his wife and children a last farewell, he desired to be raised up in the bed—then, raising his hands toward heaven, he shouted aloud 'Victory! Victory! Victory!' laid down calmly and instantly expired. This glorious triumph of faith took place on Oct. 31, 1831, in his 67th year."

His widow survived him eleven years. It is rather remarkable that she did not become a professor of religion until after her husband's death. She was finally baptized by her son Jonathan, and died full of years in strong hope of eternal happiness. Children:

- i. REUBEN E.<sup>3</sup>, b. Sept. 8, 1790, and was frozen to death when 21 years old.
- ii. LUCY, b. Jan. 2, 1792; d. in childhood.
- iii. ELIZABETH, b. Feb. 16, 1793; m. Orr.

6.

LUCY<sup>2</sup> DAVIS (1) was born in Va. and married Goodall. (See will of her father.) Dr. Garrard and others, descendants of the Davis family, have said Lucy married Richardson, but Mr. Davis in his will calls her "my daughter Lucy Goodall." She may have been twice married. Her husband died and left her with two children. When the children were grown they and their mother moved west and are lost trace of.

7.

MILDRED<sup>2</sup> DAVIS (1) was born in Va. and married Thomas Phillips. They moved to the State of Ga. and settled in Morgan County. Children (order conjectural):

i. LUCY<sup>3</sup>.
 ii. FRANCES.
 iii. ELIZABETH.
 iv. NANCY.

v. MARY.
 vi. THOMAS.
 vii. JESSE.
 viii. SARAH.

8.

SUSANNAH<sup>2</sup> DAVIS (1) was born in Va., Oct., 1769, and died in 1831. About 1786 she married Benjamin Goss in her native Co., Va. (See No. 4, Part V, The Gross Family.)

9.

ELIZABETH<sup>2</sup> DAVIS (1) youngest child of Jonathan Davis, was born in Orange Co., Va., about 1780, and married James Hitchcock in her native Co., Va., July 3, 1799. Mr. Hitchcock was born in Va. in 1774. They remained in Va. several years and then moved to and settled in Morgan Co., Ga., and in 1838 moved to Burleson Co., Tex. Mr. Hitchcock and his brother built many of the Court Houses in the State of Georgia.

Tradition has it that when seven years old James Hitchcock carried a horse to his father at Yorktown, after the surrender of the British to ride home, and that he rode home behind his father. Mr. Hitchcock was at one time an officer in Columbus, Ga., authorized to administer oaths to persons applying for pensions for services in the War of the Revolution. (A notary public or other judicial officer.) Children:

- i. WILLIAM ATKINSON<sup>3</sup>, b. June 19, 1800; d. in young manhood.
- ii. JONATHAN DAVIS, b. Oct. 28, 1801.
- 27. ii<sup>r</sup>. POLLY EASTON, b. July 15, 1803; m. Washington Baber.
- 28. iv. JOHN GIBBS, b. May 3, 1805; m. Abi Eiland.
- 29. v. LUCY DAVIS, b. Sept. 18, 18—; m. John C. Smith.
- 30. vi. ELIZABETH FAVORS, b. Sept. 15, 18—; m. Warren J. Phillips.
- vii. JAMES MADISON, b. Oct. 2, 18—; d. in young manhood.
- 31. viii. JESSE PHILLIPS, b. May 30, 1812.
- 32. ix. ANDREW JACKSON, b. Feb. 21, 1813; twice m.
- 33. x. MATTHEW MONROE, b. July 30, 18—; twice m.
- 34. xi. ISAAC NEWTON, b. July 27, 1818; m. Dora C. Bonner.
- 35. xii. SARAH ANN, b. July 8, 1821; twice m.
- xiii. NATHAN, b. July 15, 1823; d. prior 1838.
- 36. xiv. EMILY, b. Dec. 13, 1824; m. Lewis L. Chiles.

THIRD GENERATION.

10.

MATHEW<sup>3</sup> PHILLIPS (3) was born in Amherst Co., Va., in 1796. He was a lawyer by profession. He married and reared a family of four daughters and one son. We do not know whom he married. The sons and daughters were as follows, and the place of their birth indicates the several places of residence of Col. Phillips:

- 37. i. MARY BACON<sup>4</sup>, b. May 21, 1830; m. Dr. Scarbrough.
- ii. ELIZA, was born in Monticello, Jasper Co., Ga., Aug. 21, 1832.
- iii. HELEN LOUISA, was born in Lagrange, Troup Co., Ga., May 4, 1837.
- 38. iv. MATHEW, JR., m. —; father of six children.
- v. SALLIE E., born in Lafayette, Chambers Co., Ala., Feb. 20, 1843.

11.

DR. REUBEN<sup>3</sup> PHILLIPS (3) was born in Wilkes Co., Ga., Dec. 25, 1800, was educated for a physician and was a successful practitioner at the time of his death. He married Mary Baldwin Smart, of Notasulga, Macon Co., Ala., at Hillsboro, Ga., May 26, 1825, Rev. Mr. Hand officiating. Miss Smart was born in Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 20, 1907. Dr. Phillips died May 12, 1851, at Cooper's Well, Miss., where he had gone in search of health. Mrs. Mary B. Phillips died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dr. M. J. Green, at Talladega, Ala., May 24, 1882. Dr. and Mrs. Phillips were members of the Baptist Church, were consecrated, conscientious and devoted to their church. Dr Phillips was highly esteemed as a physician and was devoted to his profession. Mrs. Phillips was a pure and gentle woman, never happier than when she made others happy. Children:

- 39. i. JULIUS CAESAR<sup>4</sup>, b. Apr. 1, 1826; m. Anna E. Leftwich.
- 40. ii. MARY ANN, b. Feb. 25, 1828; m. Dr. Myles J. Green.
- 41. iii. BERRIEN TROUP, b. Aug. 10, 1830; killed in the Civil War.
- 42. iv. FRANCES ANGELINA, b. Nov. 23, 1832; m. Capt. John H. Hannon.

- 45. vii. REUBEN DAVIS, b. Dec. 1, 1839; m. A. Beasley.
- 46. viii. THOMAS SMART, b. Nov. 3, 1842; m. Glenora Lamar.
- 47. ix. ELLA CLAY, b. Dec. 13, 1844; m. William W. Pearce.
- 48. x. EMMA VIRGINIA, b. Feb. 26, 1848; m. John W. Stroud.
- 49. xi. WILLIAM HENRY, b. Aug. 1, 1851; m. Eleanora Jackson.

12.

NATHAN<sup>3</sup> PHILLIPS (3) resided at Forsyth, Monroe Co., Ga. We do not know whom he married. We have the names of three children:

- i. REUBEN<sup>4</sup>.
- ii. MARY.
- iii. FRANCES.

13.

MARY<sup>3</sup> PHILLIPS (3) (called Mollie) married Jesse Wooten, of Carroll Co., Ga. She died leaving one child. A son:

JAMES D.<sup>4</sup>, m. Mary Ann Baber, his cousin (See No. 49½).

14.

ELIZABETH<sup>3</sup> PHILLIPS (3) married Thomas Baber, Oct. 8, 1809, in Wilkes Co., Ga. She died June 26, 1825. Mr. Baber lived to very old age, eighty-one years, eight months. They had four sons and three daughters. All died unmarried except one daughter. The family is extinct, being no living descendant. Children:

JAMES<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (4) eldest son of Rev. John Davis, went with his parents from the State of Ga. to Tenn., and it is said, built the first house at what is now Winchester, Tenn. He married Eliza Hill. The Daveses were pioneer settlers in Tenn., and when Ala. was open to settlement, all except the eldest daughter, who had married Leroy May, left Tenn. and settled in Russell Valley, at what is now Russellville. James Davis later on moved to Tex. He became eminent as a lawyer and was wealthy. He died at Cold Springs San Jacinto Co., Tex.

16.

WILLIAM<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (4) was born Sept. 24, 1804, in the State of Ga., and married in Tenn., A. Malvina F., daughter of Col. David Henderson, of Summerville, Tenn.

Miss Henderson was born Oct. 3, 1811, and was educated at Summerville, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis were members of the Baptist Church.

Reuben E. Davis says of his brother William, in his book:

"He was a man of unusual mental force and had such a strong common sense and knowledge of business that his judgment was almost unerring. He was prudent in the management of his affairs, but always just and generous in the highest degree. He was a lawyer of ability and high standing as such in Tenn., and made both money and reputation. He moved to Texas, where he was widely known and honored, accumulated a handsome fortune."

Mr. Davis and his wife died in El Paso, Tex. Mrs. Davis died May 18, 1890. Children:

50. i. JOHN<sup>4</sup>, b. July 18, 1830; m. Miss Coulter.

ELIZABETH<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (4) married Leroy May in Tenn. Of this marriage we have an account of two daughters:

Mrs. Musidora May Duncan, of Whitney Hill Co., Tex.
Mrs. Greathouse, of Austin, Tex.

18.

LUCY<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (4) married Dr. George Higgason, had four children and died, and Dr. Higgason married her sister Mary (4).

Reuben E. Davis says in his book of Dr. Higgason:

"He was an excellent physician, an elegant and accomplished gentleman. He was a man of extensive reading, and his information was accurate. So great was his popularity he was repeatedly elected to the Legislature."

Dr. Higgason died ———. Mrs. Higgason died in 1874.

Children of Dr. and Lucy Higgason:

REUBEN E.<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (4). The following account of the life and career of Reuben E. Davis is gleaned from his book, Recollections of Mississippi and Mississippians. He was the 12th and youngest child of Rev. John Davis, was born in Winchester, Tenn., and when about five years old, the family emigrated to Ala., and settled in Russell Valley, where he was reared on a farm, assisting in farm work and receiving only a common school education.

He says in his book:

"While still a lad I left home to begin a new chapter in my preparation for life. My father decided, after much hesitation and many misgivings, that I should be allowed to study medicine. All my desires pointed even then to the law, but my father held stubbornly to his peculiar theories on this subject. It was very clear to him, he said, that lawyers were wholly given up to the devil even in this world, and that it was impossible for any one of them ever to enter the kingdom of heaven. This being the case, he could not, in conscience, allow a son of his to enter the ranks of a profession foredoomed to everlasting burnings. He also entertained strong doubts as to the final welfare of medical men in general, but admitted that some few might be saved, provided they used their best endeavors not to kill their patients and resisted the temptation to prolong illness with a view to pecuniary profit."

"After solemn admonition on these points, I left home with my father's consent and blessing, to read medicine with my brother-in-law, Dr. Higgason, in Hamilton, Monroe County, Mississippi."

After about two years' study and preparation Dr. Davis commenced the practice of medicine in Russellville, Ala. He did not practice but a few years, however, until he determined to take up the study of law, and about 1832 was admitted to the bar and moved to Monroe Co., Miss., to engage in law practice. In the meantime he had married Mary Halbert. They discussed the matter of leaving her with her friends until he went to Miss. and prepared a home for her. She was cheerful and resolute and positively refused to be left behind. She said they had married with the full knowledge that they had their own way to make and must make it together, and she expressed the most perfect confidence that a bright future awaited them, if they should have courage enough to be happy in the midst of the privations and hardships of youth. "In short she encouraged and cheered me as only a devoted wife could do, and though we had some hard experience, I do not remember a single moment of despondence on her part."

Mr. Davis began the practice of law at Athens, Monroe Co., Miss., and soon became eminent as a lawyer, especially so as a criminal lawyer. He was widely known and recognized for his success in acquitting persons indicted for criminal offenses. He says he defended many persons and never had a client hung.

Mr. Davis commanded a regiment in the Mexican War and in 1857 was elected to the United States Congress. He died suddenly at Huntsville, Ala., while on a tour selling his book.

There was no issue by his marriage to Miss Halbert. This wife died and he married again. His widow resides at Aberdeen, Miss. Children:

- i. ELIZABETH BALDWIN<sup>4</sup>, m. W. P. Taylor and they had one child, Reuben Davis<sup>5</sup>.
- ii. REUBEN S., not m.
- iii. EDWARD S., d. young.

REV. WILLIAM<sup>3</sup> DAVIS, JR., (5) was born Dec. 8, 1796, in Elbert Co., Ga., was educated at Elberton and married Joice Johnson in 1815. Miss Johnson was born in Wilkes Co., Ga., Nov. 12, 1797, and was educated at Elberton, Ga. Mr. Davis' life business was farming and preaching the gospel. He and his wife were members of the Baptist Church and of which he was a minister. They resided in Heard Co., Ga.

OBITUARY.

ELDER WILLIAM DAVIS.—Being the last and only surviving member of the family of eleven children of Elder William Davis, who died in Wilkes county, Ga., in the year 1832. I take this method to give notice to the relatives and friends of my last brother, Elder William Davis, of Heard county, of his death, which occurred at his home in said county on the 17th day of July, 1873. He was in the 77th year of his life. He joined the Baptist Church at Clark's Station, in Wilkes Co., Ga., in the year 1828; was made a deacon years after; and in the latter part of his life was ordained to the great work of the gospel ministry. He was one of the faithful and devout men of God. Those who best knew him loved him most. He died as above stated at his home in a remarkable way. The day before his death he visited one of his Baptist brethren about two and a-half miles off, came home in the evening, rested well and quietly all night, rose early next morning and said to his wife and children that he would die that day, and was unusually cheerful. He spent most of the morning reading religious works. About half after eleven o'clock, lying on his bed, he made slight complaint. His son William, who was eating his dinner at the time soon finished his meal and went to look after him, but found he had gotten up and walked out in the piazza and seated himself in a chair. His son noticed that he looked a little pale in the face, and, laying his hand on his head, asked him if he would not again lie down. He arose, walked into his room and to his bed, law down and was dead in a minute. Died without a groan or a struggle. Died! did I say? Went to sleep in Jesus, his Saviour.

"Asleep in Jesus—blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep;
A calm undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes."

"He is gone where the pendulum vibrates ever always! ever always! and the clock strikes no more!"

JEPHTHA V. DAVIS, SR.

Rev. JONATHAN<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (5) was born in Wilkes Co., Ga., Nov. 17, 1798, and was twice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Johnson, who bore ten children and died in 1841. Mr. Davis' second wife was Mary Bledsoe, born Mar. 31, 1823, and educated at Griffin, Ga. They were married July 30, 1844. There were born of this marriage seven children.

Mr. Davis died Aug. 20, 1869.

Mrs. Mary Bledsoe Davis died Sept. 11, 1878.

We take the following sketch of the life and ministerial work of Rev. Jonathan Davis from Campbell's Georgia Baptist:

"Rev. Jonathan Davis * * * * At what age he was converted we are not informed, though it is believed to have been when he was yet young. He was baptized by his father and soon after commenced preaching. Soon after his ordination he took charge of a small church in Elbert County, which had barely a nominal existence, and which had been on the eve of dissolution for years. A gracious revival was soon experienced, and the membership was increased to upwards of a hundred. About the year 1829, he became pastor of the church at Crawfordville, where he resided for years, and where the greatest success crowned his labors. The church enjoyed a succession of revivals, during which hundreds were converted and baptized. The blessed influence extended to the neighboring churches, which also experienced great prosperity. It is related of him that he baptized sixty on a certain Sabbath morning at Bethesda church, Green county, Ga."

"During a portion of the time of his residence at Crawfordville he also served the Antioch and Sugar Creek Churches in Morgan county, in both of which his ministry was eminently successful—said to have baptized at the latter church upwards of seventy candidates on one occasion. At another time said to have baptized more than eighty. There was no duty in which he delighted more than administering baptism. Long before his ministry ceased it was said he had baptized upwards of three thousand persons. The temperance cause, which for a series of years, occupied much public attention, and excited much interest, found in Mr. Davis an ardent friend and an eloquent advocate. In fact there was no cause involving the interest of his fellow-men, to the support of which he did not bring all the ardor of his nature, all the gifts of oratory, with which he was so highly endowed. He threw his whole soul into the support of the objects of the Baptist State convention, especially the improvement of rising ministry. His own education having been quite limited, he left nothing undone that would contribute to the advantage of the young ministers rising up around him. He accordingly made provision for the board and tuition of several young brethren at Crawfordville, where he resided.

"He was of an exceedingly kind and Christian spirit. He was not a man of strife, but a man of peace; he delighted in being a peacemaker. He was a man of strong faith—'Have faith in God.' In the year 1835, while yet in the zenith of his popularity and usefulness, he moved from Crawfordville with several other prominent families from the same region and settled in the village of Palmyra, on Kinchafoonce Creek, in Lee county. Here he spent many years in active ministerial labors, which were crowned with abundant success in founding and building up churches and in giving the Baptist a prestige in that section which they have never lost. He received active sympathy and liberal support from the intelligent and pious men who emigrated with him to that region—the James Mercur and others of the same class—and from those who were brought into the kingdom through his instrumentality. Here also he raised a large family, many of whom or their children reside in Southwestern Ga., and all of whom occupy responsible positions in society and are faithful adherents of the faith so ably advocated by their worthy sire. He died Aug. 20, 1869, and Mrs. Mary Bledsoe Davis died Sept. 11, 1878.

The following sketch of the life and character of Rev. Jonathan Davis is furnished by a friend:

Johnathan Davis was a unique character, self-made, independent. When eighteen he married Elizabeth Johnson in her sixteenth year. He always overlooked his father's farm and attended to all business of a secular nature.

Rev. William Davis in making his will said: To my son Jonathan I bequeath my blessing, my wife and five dollars. To my wife the portion of two children. Jonathan baptized his mother after the death of his father. She had retained her Quaker faith through a long useful life. After her death he would have none of the "double portion," always affirmed that the blessing was sufficient, all he wished. He was successful as farmer, minister, and in raising a large family, upon whom the blessing must have descended.

He was among the first settlers in South West Georgia. Bought up quantities of government land and with the inducement of cheap homes soon had the country around Albany and Palmyra full of inhabitants. He was a king among the "princes of Southern hospitality." One of the "knightliest knights of Southern chivalry." He had touched the scar on the forehead of his father, received in defence of his country during the Revolution and with all the sons promised to be true to "States Rights." He was so opposed to secession he had every light put out in his home the night Albany was illuminated when Georgia seceded. Yet when "the die was cast" Sherman found him in Atlanta defending "States Rights."

He had corresponded with Senator Jefferson Davis before the war and was so interested in his career as President of the Confederate States, wrote several advisory letters, finally made one or two visits, hoping to prevent one or two mistakes he was fearful would be made. One of his daughters remonstrated when the letters were sent. He replied: "It may look like conceit, but I cannot consider that when so much is at stake. Your uncle James was a great admirer of Queen Victoria and at one crisis in her reign when outside help seemed to be needed, wrote her a letter full of good counsel. The course advised was certainly adopted."

Kit Warren, in his reminiscences of old Palmyra, says that more people were baptized and more churches established by Jonathan Davis than any other minister in the State. His special mission seemed to be making strong the weak and building up waste places. He was a friend to any needing friendship. Many in Georgia can remember kindly aid given in education. W. N. Chando in the cemetery at Albany dedicated to his memory the sweet old hymn:

"Servant of God, well done,
Rest from thy loved employ;
Thee hath fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

23.

JEPHTHA V.<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (5) was born in Wilkes Co., Ga., on Dec. 10, 1801. He was brought up to work on the farm and had but little opportunity to go to school. The whole of his scholastic opportunity afforded him a chance to spell and read a little with a sort of begining in aritmetic.

After arriving at manhood he became an overseer on other men's farms and in this way accumulated some property by economy and frugality. His father died in 1832 and left him some property, perhaps a negro boy and negro girl. He was careful with whatever he bought or owned.

The Civil War found him with a very large family of sons and daughters, on most of whom he had bestowed much in the way of education, and he was still worth about $25,000.

He was a strong advocate of education, a great admirer of common sense, of which he had more than falls to the lot of men generally.

At or about the age of 27 he married Temperance Daniel, said to have been a charmingly beautiful young woman.

Mr. Davis when a young man was very much inclined to infidelity, although his father was a Baptist minister, and two of his brothers had become Baptist ministers, he rather cultivated his infidel thoughts until he was more than well grown, but gradually the truth dawned upon him that he was a sinner and about that time he had a dream which greatly impressed him. He sought God in prayer and sought the prayers of Christians and finally had very strong manifestation of the love of Jesus, joined the Baptist Church in Wilkes Co., and was baptized by his brother, Rev. James Davis.

He was exceptionally a devout Christian. He moved to Heard Co. in the latter part of 1836. He and his wife placed their membership in Bethel Church in said county. He was elected a deacon of the same a few years after, became a most zealous member, leading many times in prayer meeting and became famous in the churches for many miles around in Heard and other counties as an exhorter. Many souls were led by him to Christ.

As a citizen he stood high, serving his county as a grand juror and otherwise. In politics he was a Whig, but would not consent, though urged to do so, to seek or have any office or be sent to the Legislature.

The first of Jan. 1847 he moved to Coweta Co., and settled near the town of Newnan, where he continued his same methods of life and spent much of his time during the summer months with the churches, and was greatly successful in his efforts in his church and Christian work. A great many young people were brought to Christ through his influence and many a preacher was assisted by him in protracted meetings, and many times he was sent for and asked to "come and help us." For all this work, which continued up to the end of the war, he would not accept any financial remuneration.

He was made treasurer of the Western Association of Ga. in 1846 against his wishes and held the place for several years because his brethren so requested.

He was very fond of his children and took great delight in the companionship of his wife and children. Never husband loved or honored wife more than he. His wife died on July 3, 1853, leaving 14 children, the youngest about one year old. It was a crushing blow and for a time he often wept and lamented her departure. But he was never heard in this severe or any other affliction to utter a murmuring word at the providence of God. He was a man of the strongest faith and never once seemed to doubt that God was good and did all things well with him. God was ruler and he bowed in submission to His will. This sad event but increased his religious zeal and love for Christ and immortal souls. His home was ever a home for preachers, and many of them knew it—the door was open to them and they came just when it suited them.

Hon. A. H. Stephens was his life long personal friend, and like Mr. Stephens, he thought the separate secession of the States not a wise policy, but preferred that all the Southern States should act in concert if they seceded. But the State of Georgia having once seceded he accepted the situation and six of his sons made true and brave soldiers in the Confederate army and fought in many a battle. He prayed that God would spare them—four of them were wounded but only one was killed, his oldest.

When hospitals were established at Newnan he gave the wounded and sick soldiers almost his entire time, saying words of encouragement, administering to their wants and persuading them to have Jesus as their friend and Saviour. He accepted the results of the Civil War without a murmur, although the larger part of the property for which he had labored was swept away and that his first born son had fallen in battle, it was a maxim of his life: "Thy will be done on earth as in Heaven." Some time after the death of his first wife he married a second wife, who was Sarah A. Daniel, a maiden niece of his first wife, and by this union was born to them five children. Thus it was by the two wives he became the father of (19) nineteen children, every one of whom loved and honored him in the superlative degree, and every one of whom he saw baptized and received into the Baptist Church on a full profession of faith in Christ except two, one of them died when about twelve years old, the other, the youngest by his second wife was only ten or eleven years old when the father died. Mr. Davis died on Sept. 19, 1883, lacking less than three months of being 82 years old. He died as he had lived, with an unyielding faith in the Saviour to whom he had committed his all, and is quoted as having said a few days before his death: "O death where is thy sting; O grave where is thy victory?" and uttered among his very last intelligent expressions: "I am not afraid to die." He is buried in the family burying ground, one and one-half miles east of Newnan. A volume could be written of this good man, his life was pure—he loved truth for truth's sake and no influence of wealth, position or power could change or abate his devotion for truth or principle—he was of iron nerve when defending the right.

Mrs. Temperance (Daniel) Davis, the first wife of Jephtha V. Davis, was born in Green Co., Ga., on December 4, 1808. She united with the Baptist Church at old Bethesda in said county when about 18 or 19 years of age, and was baptized by Rev. Jonathan Davis, who after her marriage became her brother-in-law.

She was heard to speak often of the great anguish of soul she felt while under conviction for sin—at times almost despaired of ever finding relief. It was while a blind preacher, whose name is now unknown, was delivering a sermon somewhere in the neighborhood of where her mother (a widow) lived when she believed and trusted in Jesus as her Saviour. She expressed much happiness over this result.

It was a favorite song with her during all her life which begins thus:

"What wondrous love is this?
O my soul! O my soul!
What wondrous love is this?
That caused the Lord of Bliss
To bear the dreadful curse
For my soul, for my soul."

She was married to Jephtha V. Davis in 1828 or 9 and afterwards moved with her husband to Crawfordville, Taliaferro Co., and thence to Heard Co., 1836, and thence to Corveta, 1846, where she died with a congestive chill on July 3, 1853. She was blessed with 14 children, 11 boys and 3 girls, all of whom survived her, the youngest being about one year old when the mother died.

She loved her church; she loved her home; she loved her husband; she loved her children; she loved her neighbors; she loved her servants. The large family demanded her presence at home and she verily believed her duty was to make the home happy, and often said her mission in life was to take care of her children and the household. She was especially watchful over the moral and religious training of her children. Tenderly and lovingly did she minister to their wants, but as all mothers ought to do, she demanded their obedience. She seemed at all times influenced by a sense of love, duty and fidelity. She was a woman of much prayer and delighted in reading the New Testament. It was largely through her influence that her husband was first brought forward as a public exhorter, and she manifested a special anxiety that he should first take up and then regularly keep up family prayer. She greatly enjoyed the visits of friends to her home and always made them happy with table comforts and pleasant rooms. The preachers understood there was a "preacher's room" for them and many, ay very many of them availed themselves of her bountiful supplies in their behalf.

"Aunt Tempy," as she was called, was often quoted as an example for other mothers and wives. At her funeral, which occurred at the family grave, she being the first buried there, one mile and a half east of Newnan, hundreds of friends and relatives attested their love and devotion by their attendance; and perhaps a hundred voices sang before the final close of the grave:

"Sister, thou was mild and lovely,
Gentle as the summer breeze,
Pleasant as the air of evening
When it floats among the trees.

"Dearest sister, thou hast left us;
Here thy loss we deeply feel;
But 'tis God who hath bereft us;
He can all our sorrows heal.

"Yet again we hope to meet thee;
When the day of life is fled,
Then in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tear is shed."

Sarah A. Daniel, the second wife of Jephtha V. Davis, was born in Green Co., Ga., in 1825 or 1826. She was the daughter of pious parents and united with the church at Bethesda when about eighteen or twenty years of age; was baptized as is now believed by Rev. S. G. Hillyer, D. D.

She was a good woman, pious and prayerful. Her husband, her senior in years, was greatly honored and loved by her; she manifested towards him in the nearly thirty years of their married life the tenderest devotion and nursed him in his last years of life with a fondness which was indeed, it seems, tireless. Her own health for eight or ten years previous to his death was poor, but she appeared to forget herself and count her own affliction but small when she could administer to wants of husband and children. She was greatly loved by husband and children in return. Her step-children, especially the large number of them who came under her motherly care, honored her and enjoyed her presence and company. She was remarkably kind and tender towards them. She had a heavy task in life but she performed it in a God-given spirit.

After the death of her husband her affliction increased and the struggle in life grew harder, but all this she bore with heroic courage.

One of her daughters died just as she arrived at womanhood but the mother murmured not and complained not at God's dealing with her.

During her last years she was a great sufferer, but exhibited a truly resigned and Christian spirit in it all.

This good woman died at the home of her eldest daughter in the city of Atlanta in June, 1896, and was buried in the family graveyard by the side of her husband, one and a half miles east of Newnan. Children:

REV. JAMES<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (5) was born Jan. 22, 1805, in Elbert Co., Ga., and married Louisa Edith Hudson, July 31, 1823. Miss Hudson was born Jan. 17, 1803, in Elbert Co., Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Davis were members of the Baptist Church and he was a minister of that denomination. We find the following sketch of Rev. James Davis in Cathart's Baptist Encyclopaedia:

"Rev. James Davis, one of the most useful ministers that ever lived in the western part of Georgia, including Coweta, Troup, Heard, Meriwether, and the adjoining counties, was born in Wilkes Co., Jan. 22, 1805. He married and joined the church when quite a young man, and never afterwards could relate his Christian experience without manifesting deep emotion. He moved from Elbert to Jasper Co. in 1826, where he was both licensed and ordained. Returning to Elbert Co. in 1828 he preached there for several years with increasing power and success. About 1830 he moved to the western part of the state where he spent the remaining portion of his life, acting as a pioneer Baptist and preaching those Baptist principles which to-day flourish so extensively in that section. Strong in native intellect, robust in constitution, untiring in energy, and inspired by the sole desire to 'preach Christ crucified,' Mr. Davis left his impression on the entire section of country in which he lived. He assisted in the constitution of the Baptist Church at Lagrange and indeed most of the Baptist Churches in the counties where he labored. A friend of education, strongly missionary in spirit, earnest, devout, gifted and eloquent preacher, struggled nobly to disseminate the great truths of Christianity as maintained by his denomination; and he did much to give moral tone to the community in which he lived as any man. Good and useful here he died as he lived in the faith of Jesus. He passed away in Sept., 1859, at his home in Heard Co. To his only absent son, Rev. William H. Davis, then residing at Hepzibah, Ga., he sent this simple message: 'Strive, my son, to be a good minister of the gospel and meet me in glory.' We know that one injunction has been fulfilled and we have every reason to believe both have been."

26.

REV. JESSE MERCER<sup>3</sup> DAVIS (5) was born in Wilkes Co., Ga., Jan. 25, 1807. He moved to Southwest, Ga., with his brother Jonathan about 1836. He was thrice married. His first wife was Sophia Burton. His second was a widow, Mrs. Gilbert, and his third also a widow, was Mrs. McGoldrick.

We find in History of the Baptist Denomination of Georgia —(Index Co.) the following sketch:

" * * * Rev. Jesse M. Davis was born in Wilkes Co., Ga., Jan. 25, 1807, and during boyhood labored with his brothers on his father's farm. He possessed a very superior mind; was ambitious and studious, and so availed himself of eighteen months' only of schooling that he laid the solid foundation of an education that was very respectable, and which, by application, continued to improve throughout his life. He was an earnest and beautiful speaker with a mind both logical and philosophical, and in conversation was brilliant and interesting. His voice was musical and fascinating, his manners were genial and captivating, while his personal appearance was handsome and imposing. He commenced the practice of law at Ellerton, Ga., in his eighteenth year, but in his twenty-first year he was converted and baptized, and soon after abandoned his profession to preach the Gospel, for like Paul he felt 'Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel.' The same year in which he joined the church he married Miss Sophia Burton, a lady of rare attainments, whose Christian virtues and brilliant mind added much to her husband's advancement. He was ordained about 1830, and in 1835 moved from Elbert to Lee county, then a frontier of the State, and infested by Indians. At one time he was compelled to abandon his home and send his family to Twiggs County for safety, but he himself remained and joined the company organized to pursue and combat the Indians. As soon as peace and quiet were restored his family returned and he then built, upon his own land and at his own expense, a Baptist house of worship, which he named Hebron. He then built up a church for which he preached twenty-three years without remuneration. For the same number of years he dwelt in Lee County, and by planting accumulated a large property. The doors of his home, known as 'Pleasant Level,' being ever thrown open for rich and poor alike, and its numerous visitors cordially welcomed with a true Christian hospitality.

"He always had the care of three or four different churches, but never, until the war, in its results swept away his ample fortune, did he accept any compensation for his pastoral labor. In 1858 he removed to Decatur Co. where he resided during the war. Although opposed to secession he quietly acquiesced in the action of his State and at his own expense armed and equipped a company for military service. While the war lasted he was a true friend of the families of our soldiers who were in the service, sparing neither time nor money to supply their necessities; and yet so unostentatious was his generosity that none outside of his own family were aware of its extent.

"After the close of the war he was called to the care of the church in Blakely, Ga., where, after four months of grievous suffering in the bed of languishing, which he bore with the utmost Christian fortitude, he died on August 14, 1868. His remains lie buried in Blakely. During all the weary months of confinement he was never known by word or act to manifest the least impatience or want of submission. His death bed witnessed scenes of exalted Christian resignation and triumph which proved the reality of his religion. 'I would not change the peace of mind which I now have to be at ease and dwell in all the splendors of earth' was his pious exclamation after obtaining relief from one of his fearful paroxysms of suffering. The day preceding his death, he repeated over and over again these lines:

'Farewell vain world, I'm going home,
My Saviour calls and bids me come.'

"The following day death fell on him suddenly and he passed away almost instantly without a spasm or contortion according to his own frequent prayer to which God thus graciously answered.

"In character Mr. Davis was one of the most amiable and benevolent of men, delighting in doing good and making others happy, and stinting neither time, money nor measures to accomplish his object. Large-souled as well as large bodied, he was above everything that approached to littleness or meanness, and for scores of years preached with that fascinating persuasiveness that attracted so many to the fount of everlasting life. His oratory was in the highest sense winning, and his delivery was most varied, pleasing and fascinating. While he denounced sin he loved the sinner, and drew him with melting tenderness to embrace the terms of the Gospel. A beautiful speaker, with a well trained mind and fine imaginative powers, he was, withal, imbued with an impressive earnestness which gave solemnity and power to his preaching. No disturbance in church or out of it ever marred the even tenor of charitable Christian life, for he invariably retained the goodwill and friendly regard of all, so guiding his life as to avoid all personal as well as sectarian controversies. While a strong Baptist and sound in the faith he was beloved by Christians of every name and highly respected by all classes of the community."

32.

ANDREW JACKSON<sup>3</sup> HITCHCOCK (9) was born Feb. 21, 1813, near Columbus, Ga. He was twice married and was the father of eight children, all of whom died in infancy. He lost his life in a fire, burning of the James House in Denton, Tex., Aug. 25, 1887.

Andrew Jackson Hitchcock had a most eventful life and checkered career. He went to Tex. in 1835 in Captain Jack Shackelford's Company, Georgia Battalion of Fannin's Command. He was with Fannin and surrendered with him after the battle of Colita on Mar. 17, 1836. He was taken to Goliad and confined in the Old Mission with the rest of the prisoners. On the morning of Mar. 27, Sunday, he and the rest of the privates, about 319, were marched out upon the pretence of being exchanged. About one half mile from the fort near a brush cattle pen they were halted and fired upon by the Mexican Army. Finding himself not wounded, hatless and shoeless he scaled the brush fence with four or five others, swam the river and made his escape. After they had wandered about the country a few days they were recaptured, but Hitchcock and one other finally made their escape and reached Galveston to learn the war was over. Hitchcock returned to Ga., but soon went back to Tex., and saw much service in the conflicts with the Indians. In 1839 he went to Shreveport, La., and accumulated some property which he invested in negroes and began farming on Red River.

In 1849 he engaged in a merchandise venture which was of short duration, but closed out with some profit. He then bought a livery stable in Shreveport, which he ran for several years, buying and selling horses and trading generally. In the yellow fever scourge of 1853 he remained in Shreveport, waited upon the stricken, was liberal with his money and prodigal with himself. When the Civil War broke out he owned a plantation of about twenty-five hundred acres of rich land, well stocked with horses, mules, cattle, hogs and sheep and about sixty slaves. His horses and mules were pressed into service. He sold his land for Confederate money and took his negroes and his family to San Antonio. The negroes were freed by the war and he took them back to Louisiana where they were raised and turned them loose.

In 1866 he went to Brazil with a view of colonizing there, but was not successful in this venture. He went to Brazil a second time, but finally concluded the United States was the best place for American citizens. He spent his last years in Denton, Tex., where he met his tragic death.

33.

MATHEW MONROE<sup>3</sup> HITCHCOCK (9) born July 30, 18—, was twice married. His first wife was Hester Foster. They were married in 1855, and she died in 1865, leaving four children. His second wife was Sarah Lincoln. They were married in 1866, and by this marriage there were three children born. Mathew Hitchcock was at one time a member of the Methodist Church, but embraced the Campbellite doctrine. He died in 1875, and his widow married again. She is a member of the Campbellite Church. ## 36.

EMILY<sup>3</sup> HITCHCOCK (9) was born Dec. 13, 1824, and married Lewis L. Chiles June 6, 1842. Mr. Chiles was a man of great energy, coupled with fine judgment. He was a native of Va., left an orphan at an early age and leaving his relatives when he was about eighteen he became permanently separated from them and never knew much of them. He abandoned his native state in 1828 and started west for the purpose of making his own way in the world. He stopped in Tenn. about a year after which he went to Tex. He found irregular employment with various surveying parties and in this way helped at different times to locate a large number of claims for settlers.

He served as a "Minute Man" as often as his presence was needed to assist in keeping off the hostile Indians; and finally when the climax of trouble with Mexico was reached, moved by patriotic ardor and zeal for the cause of liberty, he shouldered his musket with that devoted band of patriots under Gen. Houston to repel the invasion of the Mexican army. He was at the battle of San Jacinto and thus helped to win Texas independence and render glorious for all time the name of Texas and Texan valor. Mr. Chiles led an active life, especially in his earlier years. In 1856 he was converted and united with the Baptist Church at Caldwell, Tex., of which he was soon elected deacon, held this position until he died May 29, 1864. Emily Hitchcock Chiles, his wife, was one of the pioneer women of Burleson Co. Under the preaching of that eminent pioneer minister of Tex., Rev. William Tryon, she was converted and baptized in girlhood. This same Rev. William Tryon performed the marriage ceremony when she and Lewis Chiles were married. She lived a consistent Christian life until her death June 9, 1877. She had been reared under the old regime in Tex. and learned to keep open house in the style of early days. Children:

- i. VIRGINIA<sup>4</sup>, b. Mar. 21, 1843; m. Reuben A. Higgason. (See No. 60.)

MARTHA<sup>4</sup> DAVIS (22) was born Dec. 1, 1818, and married Dr. John C. Gilbert Apr. 7, 1835.

Dr. Gilbert was born Jan. 26, 1814, and died Jan. 29, 1864. We find in the Albany Herald the following tribute to the memory of Mrs. Gilbert:

"Mrs. Martha D. Gilbert died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Tift, of Albany, Ga.; where she had lived for many years, Jan. 29, 1903. Death was due to a general breaking down from the infirmities of age. Mrs. Gilbert was in her 85th year, having turned the 84th milestone of life's journey only a few weeks ago. Up to a comparatively recent period she continued to enjoy much of the vigor which had characterized her whole life, and though long past the allotted threescore years and ten, she retained her mental faculties unimpaired, and was not confined to her room or even the house. When the final decline set in, however, Mrs. Gilbert was forced to take her bed, and through the weary weeks which followed she grew gradually but steadily weaker. Fully realizing her condition and knowing that for her the journey of life was nearing the end, she turned a smiling face to the world, and looked through the eyes of a perfect faith into the future. Death had no terrors for her. In life she had walked with God; and no woman ever gave those about her a more beautiful example of the perfect Christian. She had seen what would seem to be more than a generous share of sorrow during the years she lived. Loved ones were taken from her, and other afflictions came, but above it all she rose triumphant with a supreme faith in the Master's wisdom and perfect plan. The motto of her life might have been: 'Thy will, not mine, oh, Lord, be done.' 'Twas so she lived.

She passed away as one falling asleep and was conscious to the last, recognizing those about her. The group around the deathbed included all her surviving children and a number of other relatives. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. William L. Richards, of the Baptist Church of which she had been a consistent and devoted member for many years. The remains were deposited in their last resting place in Oakview cemetery, Albany, Ga.

MARY MORTON<sup>4</sup> DAVIS (22) was born Jan. 22, 1845, near Indian Springs, Butts Co., Ga.

(The following sketch of the life and character of Mary M. Davis is the merited tribute of a friend, Rev. A. F. Dix.)

*" Much has been lost that might have proved a great incentive to noble deeds, had records been made of the earnest endeavor and faithful service of those who had no disposition or were too modest to make such record for themselves. This consideration has induced the present writer to give permanent form to certain deeds and characteristics of the subject of this sketch.

"First of all we must go back of character and deeds to that twofold nature in which her character is stamped, and from which her deeds have sprung, for if she had not been twice born, she had not been a Christian, and for one who knew her to think of Mary Davis apart from her Christian life were impossible. Her first birth was of Christian parents, her father a devoted, energetic Baptist minister, and her mother a patient, loving, helpful wife and devoted servant of family and church. The natural life of the daughter received thus an altruistic current which needed only the imparting of the divine nature, to cause a perpetual flow of Christian activity, a 'springing up into everlasting life.' Her second birth, therefore, as child of the Spirit, from such humanity, came like the words of the Savior to the shroud-bound Lazarus: 'Loose him and let him go.' She was loosed and let go for a life of imitation of the Master, 'going about doing good.' Her education, acquired at Albany, Ga., was such as enabled her to help others in overcoming ignorance, and laying in intellectual capital for usefulness and enjoyment, as well as to fit her own mind for the discernment, appreciation and dispensing of truth.

"Sweetly declining repeated offers of marriage, from men who have proven their worth by their success in life, she has chosen, not the life of a recluse, but rather that freedom for personal obligation to a single home of her own, which permitted her to enter many homes of kindred and friends, where her helpfulness forbade the thought of dependence, and entitled her to apply the words of the Master, 'I am among you as he that serveth.' While serving as teacher in a more public way, she has received salary that she might both be independent, and more helpful where kind words and watching and sympathy needed to be supplemented by that which was purchasable. Many an educational wall of solidity and fair proportions, has had her bricks in its foundation, and now after forty-two years of alternate teaching and resting, nursing and comforting, she is handling a school of forty pupils.

"A monument not to her exclusively, and yet of her, exists in The Woman's Home, of Montgomery, Ala, an institution benevolent in purpose and beneficent in operation, of which she was a charter member, and in the founding and success of which she took an active part. Perhaps no single service will be remembered more approvingly by the Master, or more admiringly by the people of Albany than the vindication of the doctrine of the resurrection, from the aspersions of a lecturer in a public assembly. The incident is historical."

79.

WILLIAM ASBURY<sup>4</sup> DAVIS (23) was born Jan. 11, 1830, in Coweta Co., Ga., and married Emily C. Askew Dec. 15, 1859. Miss Askew was born Dec. 5, 1842, in Pike Co., Ga., and was educated at Longstreet Academy, Coweta Co., Ga.

Mr. Davis professed faith in Christ when quite young and lived a faithful Christian until his death. He was a strong Missionary Baptist and a farmer of the highest type. He enlisted in the Confederate Army in 1862, served until wounded at Monocacy Creek, Md., July 14, 1864, was taken prisoner and carried to Frederick City, Md., where he died of his wounds Aug. 14, 1864, far from home and friends.

Mrs. Davis took care of her only child, aided by his grandfather; lived in Ga. until 1867 and then moved to Mo. She married a second time, but is again left a widow and her son is living with and taking care of her. He is a dear, good son and his mother thinks she could not well get along without him. One child:

SUSAN ANN<sup>4</sup> DAVIS (23) was born Nov. 1, 1831, and married Col. Frank D. Bowen. Two children born to them, both are dead. Mrs. Bowen died near Newnan, Ga., in Aug., 1883. Col. Bowen is also dead. He was wealthy.

81.

REV. JONATHAN BILLINGTON SANDERS<sup>4</sup> DAVIS (23) was born Jan. 25, 1833, was graduated at the State University of Ga., Athens, Ga., class of 1856. He married Sallie Burns Nov. 11, 1856; served one year as Prof Belles-Lettres in Male College; taught in several high schools and was offered professorship in several colleges. He was admitted to the bar of Ga. Mar., 1858; and served as a member of the Constitutional Convention of Ga., in 1865. He was ordained to the Gospel ministry in 1863 and has been dubbed "Newnan's Lawyer Preacher." His wife is still living (1902), an example of love, purity and fidelity.

We find in the History of The Baptist Denomination in Georgia (Index Company), the following:

"J. B. S. Davis.—The name of Davis stands very prominently on the list of Baptist ministers in Georgia. It has been borne by men of good ability and much zeal, who have all gone to their reward, leaving J. B. S. Davis their sole representative in the sacred office, though there are many worthy gifted men of the name in other professions. * * * The influences of religion were around him from his cradle, and seem to have had their wanted power, since we find that in 1845, at the early age of twelve years, professing conversion, he was baptized into Bethel Church, Heard Co., by Rev. Robert Fleming. In Sept., 1852, he entered Mercer University and remained there two years, when he repaired to the State University, Athens, Ga., and graduating from that institution in 1856. In November of that year he married the youngest daughter of Gen. D. M. Burns, of Jackson Co. He appears up to this time and perhaps after, to have had no inclination to preach, but was engaged in literary pursuits together with the study of law. In 1857 we find him occupying the chair of Belles-Letters in Cherokee Baptist College, at Cassville, Ga. In 1858, he studied law with Hon. Hugh Buchanan, of Newnan, Ga., and was admitted to the bar the same year. He seems, however, at that period, to have continued the practice of law for but two years, as he became principal of Martin Institute, Jackson Co., in 1860-61, and was elected principal of the Newnan Male Seminary, 1862-63. Teaching was his favorite work and was renounced only on account of failing health. He has been practicing law for a number of years with great success, and has been employed in some important criminal cases, winning causes not a few. His success as a teacher made it very difficult for him to leave the profession, and he had flattering proposals from many colleges and high schools in his own and other Southern States. But the Spirit of God was at work in his heart, and his ears were open unto Macedonian cry, 'Come over and help us.' In Sept., 1863, he was ordained by the Baptist Church at Newnan, to the full work of the ministry, Dr. Jesse M. Wood, pastor. The ordination sermon was preached by Rev. E. B. Teague, and was filled with good advice. One special warning was 'keep out of debt.' As a minister, he is very popular, drawing full houses and always securing the attention of his hearers."

Mr. and Mrs. Davis were members of the Baptist Church and he was a minister of the same. They resided at Hephzibah, Richmond Co., Ga. Mrs. Davis died in Washington City, D. C., Nov. 25, 1895. Rev. W. H. Davis died at his residence, Hephzibah, Ga., Sept. 18, 1879, and the next day the following notice of his death appeared in a local paper:

DEATH OF REV. W. H. DAVIS.

A GOOD MAN AND PROMINENT MINISTER SUDDENLY DIES LAST NIGHT WITH APOPLEXY.

The sad intelligence of the death of the Rev. William H. Davis, of Hephzibah, reached the city this morning. He died very suddenly at his home, about 11 o'clock last night, of apoplexy. This very sad occurrence casts a gloom over a happy household and quiet community, and calls for the fullest sympathy of a hosts of friends throughout the surrounding country.

Mr. Davis was one of the best known and respected citizens of Richmond county, and as an honored and prominent minister of the Baptist church his influence and popularity were not restricted to the boundary lines of any one section of the State or class of people. He concluded a series of meetings at the Baptist church in Hephzibah last week, with the baptism of four persons. He also conducted services last Saturday and Sunday at Reed's Creek, about twenty miles below, in Burke county, with the addition of many more converts to the church, and preached Tuesday and Wednesday at Bushy Creek church, in this county, when he returned home yesterday morning. Retiring last night about 9 o'clock, he waked up later and complained of a pain in his head. His good wife then made a light, when he remarked that he could not see well, and died shortly after. Thus it will be seen that after laboring zealously all his life in the Master's vineyard, proving his acceptability to his God and people, and fresh from the work of saving souls, he passed peacefully into the heavenly rest.

Mr. Davis was fifty-three years old at the time of his death, and leaves a wife, three daughters and a son. He was dearly loved by his church and the people generally, and his place will indeed be difficult to fill. He was regarded as one of the most prominent divines of his denomination in the State, and was for a number of years one of the principals of the Hephzibah high school, with the Rev. W. L. Kilpatrick. His funeral will take place to-morrow morning at nine o'clock, at the Hephzibah cemetery.

With the sermons and prayers of the day still warm in his heart and on his lips, this minister of God died. Friends had often urged him not to undertake so much, but it was his wish to "die in the harness," and it was not denied him.

Mr. Davis was a graduate of Mercer University, and for many years he has been an honored and most useful member of the Board of Trustees. He had spent a large portion of his life in teaching, and was instrumental in building up the Hephzibah high school to a standard not excelled by any in the State.

But it was in his ministerial life that Mr. Davis shone most brightly, and many of the counties southwest of our city look upon him as their Baptist bishop.

As pastor, friend, executor and counsellor he will be sadly missed, and his place can scarcely be filled. Into that darkened home which his presence had always filled with gladness and joy, we pray God to send the Comforter, and that He will be a husband and father to the widow and orphans.

Mr. Davis, in business, was always a prudent man, and it is some consolation to know that he has left his family a sufficient competence.

Of the life and character of Mr. Davis we have the following from Cathcart's Baptist Encyclopedia:

"Rev. William H. Davis was born in Jasper Co., Ga., Aug. 18, 1826, and died Sept. 18, 1879, at his residence in Hephzibah. A graduate of Mercer University in 1853, he settled in Burke county in 1858, and in course of time became one of the most prominent and useful ministers of the Rehobath Association. He was often its moderator, and pastor of a number of its churches, including Bark Creek, Hopewell, Bottsford and Rocky Creek. He was a trustee of Hephzibah high school from its commencement, except when a teacher and co-principal of it from 1868 to 1875 inclusive. From 1878 until his death he was a trustee of Mercer University. He was licensed in 1847, and ordained in 1853. Wm. H. Davis was a man of classical education, a citizen of untarnished reputation, a teacher of rare ability, a Christian of most exemplary deportment, a pastor faithful to his obligations, a minister of the gospel surpassed in pulpit power by few, if any, in the State. He was clear in the presentation of Scriptural truth, logical in his reasoning, and pathetic in his appeal.

"Mr. Davis was of a commanding appearance, about medium height, weighing over two hundred pounds. Of dark complexion, pleasant expression of countenance, kind and genial in spirit, and of polished manners."

King, writing from Leesburg Sept. 11, 1903, says:

"Well do I remember my parents running from the Indians when they were on the warpath, and crossing the Chattahoochee, at Columbus, Ga., on a flat (ferry boat), there being no bridge there then, and looking back and seeing the smoke ascending from the buildings to which the Indians had applied the torch." * * * * "Neither of my sons have ever been arrested nor connected with in any way the marauding element of the county, nor was ever sued on a debt which they have contracted. * * * My children all own their own homes, worked for them themselves. My daughters all own organs, know how to make wax, paper, zephyr and feather flowers, painting and drawing, also enlarging pictures; take their charts, cut and make any garment that man, woman or child wears, and if you don't believe that they can laundry their table linen and prepare a nice meal, well just come to see us. I don't see how I could have raised my young children without the help of my daughters, Ida and Annie. They have nursed more sick folks, helped to raise more babies, made more baby clothes, as well as other garments, than any other two women I ever knew. I have four daughters and six sons living; four daughters and two sons dead; forty grandchildren living, twelve dead, eleven great-grandchildren living and one dead.

"You can't imagine how proud I am of my children, have never had cause to be otherwise, they have proved to be a blessing."

FORMS FOR CONTINUING FAMILY RECORD

The following forms are intended for use continuing the family record in direct line of descent of persons possessing a copy of the work. It would be impracticable to provide for continuing the record in all the lines, hence, it is contemplated that but one family of each generation will be recorded, that being the family of the person who by gift, inheritance or otherwise takes the book as it descends from generation to generation.

It may be remarked that there are many persons who have ancestors named in the work, but whose names do not appear, and others whose names do appear, but of whom little is recorded, because the compiler was not in possession of the needed information. To all such it is suggested, if the required information is at hand, the record may be perfected, beginning with the last ancestor named, using the following forms and observing the system of reference by numbers. Use the preceeding pages of writing paper for index to these forms.

It is to be regretted that so little attention has been given to the preservation of information relating to our ancestors. Thousands of persons are to-day searching records, advertising and corresponding, seeking information of their ancestry and kindred.*

May not the compiler hope that this little book will be appreciated and preserved for many years to come, and he be kindly remembered for his arduous labor in its preparation?

*Let all your entries be made in a good handwriting with Arnold's writing fluid or other first-class ink that will not fade.
