EXPLANATORY.

The arrangement of this work has been borrowed from works of a similar kind. A general account of the family is first given, followed by an account of the first known ancestor, then of his children and so on.

On the left hand of the name of each descendant who bears or has borne the name of Wheeler is a number which serves to identify the individual. An "x" prefixed to a number signifies that the name thus marked is made the subject of a paragraph further on in the book, where it will be found with the individual's number printed above it. Directly to the right of the name is placed a small figure, which indicates the generation. Adjoining, printed within brackets, are given the names and numbers of the male ancestors. These names show one's line of descent.

To determine the relationship between two individuals compare the names enclosed in brackets, beginning at the right hand. Where one individual has not been made the subject of a special paragraph, compute the relationship by means of the names appearing after his father's name or mother's or grandmother's. Where both persons have not been made the subjects of special paragraphs, first compute the relationship between their parents or grandparents and from that you can determine their relationship.

THE WHEELER FAMILY.

It is popularly supposed that the surname Wheeler originated from an occupation. In other words that some remote ancestor of the family, at the time surnames came into use, was engaged in that necessary occupation of making wheels, and that, following the fashion of the day, he added Wheeler - the designation of his occupation - to his given name.

When we consider the word Wheeler as it is now pronounced and spelt, the foregoing derivation is plausible. But it is not reasonable to judge the past by the present. The name Wheeler was not always spelt and pronounced as it is to-day. Like thousands of other English words it is the product of an evolution, and so decided has been its change that when we place the present surname beside its progenitor its resemblance thereto is slight.

The name Wheeler did not originate from an occupation at all. That of course is not the only source from whence our family names come. It just as often happened that a man's neighbors bestowed upon him an appellation on account of some marked trait, or because of some signal feat he may have performed. So it was with the name Wheeler.

Away back in the days of the Teutons, there was among them in one of their communities a great giant of a man noted for his bravery and fearlessness as a warrior, who, because of the good fortune which seemed always with him in his daring exploits, his neighbors called the "wela hari" or "Welhar - the lucky warrior. When this personage lived I know not. Likely it was in the 5th Century, for it requires no great stretch of the imagination to suppose that Welhar, this mighty and prosperous warrior was among the first selected by Hengest, or AElle, or Cedric, or Cynric, or some one of the Saxon chieftains, as a follower in the invasion of Britain. And it was in this way perhaps that this old Teutonic name was transplanted into England.

In the 8th Century the bearers wrote it Wielher, and in the great Domesday Book of William the Conqueror the name of a holder of lands is recorded as Weleret. Hugh le Welere of the County of Cambridge is mentioned on the Hundred Rolls in 1273, and Richard le Whelere on the Close Rolls in 1348. First the "le" was dropped, and then the final "e" and we have the name Wheler as it is to-day written by some of the English families.

It is by spelling it at the present time Wheeler that plausibility is lent to the above mentioned erroneous derivation of this old Teutonic name. ("The Teutonic Name System," by Robert Ferguson (London: 1864) pp.29, 382 and 383; "British Family Names" by Rev. Henry Barber (London: 1903) p. 14 and p.275; "The Norman People" (London: 1874); "A Dictionary of English and Welsh Surnames" by C. W. Bardsley (London: 1901) p. 805.)

In England the Wheeler family has not been treated as extensively by the historians as its merit demands. Branches of the family are to be found in almost every county. The names of Worcester, Kent, Bedford, Wilts, Middlesex, Buckingham, Gloucester, Durham, Hertford and Nottingham make but an incomplete list. Members of the family are found in the army, and in the navy and among the Landed Gentry, Knighthood, Members of Parliament and Baronets.

Rev. Samuel Orcutt, the historian, tells us that the Wheelers were in and around London for more than four hundred years. That is true, and it is equally true, as all our information shows, that they were a God-fearing, honest, sober, industrious and intelligent people, and their descendants, especially in this country, have sustained that reputation.

"In the world of letters members of the Wheeler family are pre-eminent, and the number of authors and their valuable contributions to theology, history, science, art, poetry, philosophy and travels is something remarkable and surpassed by very few." (Welles American Family Antiquities, vol. 3 (1881) pp.41-45.)

The author of the above supports this seeming bold assertion by numerous excerpts from Allibone's Authors and various biographical dictionaries.

Morally and mentally the Wheeler family is well developed. I may add, "and physically," for the early Wheelers, especially those of new England, were very fond of athletic sports and probably produced some of the best wrestlers of the day.

The families of the name that were among the early emigrants to this country were exceedingly numerous. They settled principally in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Virginia. "Between 1650 and 1680," says Shattuck, "there were in Concord, Mass., alone, thirty distinct Wheeler families." And Farmer records as an interesting fact that twenty-six of the name had graduated from

New England colleges in 1826.

In Hotten's "List of Emigrants to America, 1600-1700" it is stated that in 1620, Henrie Wheeler arrived in Virginia in the "Tryall"; that Edward Wheeler embarked at London, May 16, 1635, in the "Plaine Joane" for Virginia; that on July 24, 1635 John Wheeler embarked in the "Assurance" from London for Virginia; that Richard Wheeler sailed for Virginia on August 21, 1635 in the "Thomas"; that on August 1, 1679 John Wheeler, Jr., embarked at London in the ship "Returne" for New England. There was a John Wheeler in Newbury, Mass. who Savage says came in the "Mary and John" in 1634. There was a Thomas in Boston in 1636; a Thomas in Lynn, made freeman in 1642, and a Moses (ancestor of Gen. Joseph Wheeler) in Stratford, Conn., who, Mr. Orcutt says, was born in 1598, in the County of Kent, England.

The progenitor of the branch of the Wheeler family of which I have herein undertaken to preserve some record, was Thomas Wheeler. In 1639 (possibly as early as 1635) he appeared in Concord, Mass. The new England records clearly show that at Concord and the viciniity there appeared at about the same time the following:

- ✓ (1) Thomas, aforesaid.
- (2) Ephraim, who first settled in Concord, and afterward permanently in Fairfield, Ct.
- (3) Obadiah, with his wife Susannah, settled in Concord, and died there October 29, 1671, aged 63 years/
- (4) George, with his wife Catherine, and two or three children.
- (5) Thomas, afterward a Captain and the hero of the Indian fight at Brookfield, Mass.
- (6) Joseph, who settled in Concord and was known as Lieutenant Joseph.
- (7) Timothy, settled in Concord; made freeman May 13, 1640; Ensign in 1646 and Captain late in his days; most frequently called Lieutenant Timothy.
- (8) Thomas, settled in Concord; was nephew of above Capt. Timothy. This Thomas was appointed Sergeant in 1642.
- (9) Isaac, with his wife Frances, settled in Charlestown, Mass.
- (10) Richard settled in Dedham, and afterward in Lancaster, Mass.

How these persons were related to one another the books on New England genealogy do not state. Orcutt does say that (1) and (2) were brothers and on this account Ephraim Wheeler's name was included in the above list. As to where these Wheelers came from there is in the books only a tradition - a faint whisper from the past - that it was Wales. Not a single fact or circumstance have I been able to find that points to Wales rather than to any other country as their home. On the other hand the local history of Concord, and the neighborhood, does disclose certain facts which seem significant and suggestive. First, that the original road cut through the woods by the first settlers in Concord, over which they and their immediate followers came into the meadows of the Musketequid has been known since 1650 as "the Virginia Road", and the district through which it runs is called "Verginy" on old deeds and records. And second, that the plain behind the hill at Meriam's Corner, right at the end of Virginia, is called "Cranefield" in conveyances and in the town's records from 1648 to almost the present day.

Now Peter Bulkeley, the first minister of Concord, came from Odell, Bedfordshire, England. (See "The Bulkeley Family" by F. W. Chapman.) In the same county, about eight miles from Odell, and equidistant southwest of the city of Bedford is a little parish called Cranfield, and in that parish there was in 1632 a district (or possibly merely an estate) known as Virginia. On the parish registers of Cranfield I find the names of most all of the foregoing Wheelers, the records of the marriages of some and the records of the baptisms of a number of their children. And after a careful comparison of these parish registers with the American records of the foregoing Wheelers, I think that I am correct in solving their relationship in this way. Nine of them were sons and one a grandson of three brothers, viz: Richard, Thomas and John Wheeler, husbandmen, who lived and died in Cranfield. Nos. (1), (2) and (3) were sons of Richard; Nos. (4), (5), (6) and (7) were sons of Thomas; and Nos. (9) and (10) sons of John. No. (8) was a grandson of Thomas, a nephew and adopted son of (7) Captain Timothy. In the following pages will be given the genealogy of the descendants of (1) Thomas Wheeler.

THOMAS WHEELER was undoubtedly born in Cranfield, Bedfordshire, England, about 1588. The record of his baptism is not found on the registers of the Cranfield parish church of St. Peter and St. Paul because those records were not begun to be kept until 1600, and, according to them, Thomas Wheeler and Anne Halsey were married as early as May 5, 1613.

For at least twenty-five years after his marriage Thomas Wheeler resided in Cranfield; and then, with his family, he emigrated to America. Just when he left England, from what port he embarked, where he landed in this country, are all unknown. Like many others, the record of the first few years of his residence here is so tightly bound up with the history of the settlement of Concord, Massachusetts, that as we unfold the latter we learn more about our subject.

Late in the summer of 1635, a number of persons met in Cambridge, Mass., and organized a church or colony, and petitioned the Court for a charter. This assembly elected Rev. Peter Bulkeley teacher and Rev. John Jones (or Joanes), pastor. A grant of land six miles square and bearing the Indian name Musketequid, had about a year previously been purchased from the Indians by Major Simon Willard. On this tract the newly-banded colonists decided to settle.

Some conjecture that this colony had been previously organized in England. Others say that the settlement of Concord was made necessary by the crowded conditions of the other colonies, and that, as the settlers came from all parts of England, it is unreasonable to suppose that they had come together in that country before coming to America.

The nucleus of the Concord colony was formed in England. One of - if not the most influential - persons present at the meeting in Cambridge in 1635 was Rev. Peter Bulkeley, who was elected teacher. He and the four Wheelers) thomas, Thomas, Jr., Ephraim and Timothy - were from Bedfordshire. He had been a minister in Odell in that county and had been warned for his non-conformity to the English church. Odell is only eight miles from Cranfield - the home of the Wheelers. In view of these facts it requires no great stretch of the imagination to suppose that the Wheelers and other persons in Bedfordshire shared Bulkeley's religious views and decided to accompany him to America. According to Savage, Bulkeley came over in the "Susan and Ellen," which landed in Cambridge in 1635. The Wheelers may have come with him. Certainly they were here in 1639, because in a petition to the Court asking for the enlargement of the township of Concord, signed by them in 1643, they say they came to Concord in 1639. According to some authorities Ephraim Wheeler was made a freeman on March 13, 1639, and Thomas, his brother (our subject), on April 17, 1639.

But to return to the history of the settlement. The charter, granted the Colony by the Court on September 2, 1635 (old style), which provided for the establishment of a plantation at the Indian village of Musketequid, also changed the name of the place to Concord. In the early part of October, 1635, settlement was begun. At first the church was very prosperous, the congregation was numerous and the ministers zealous. But the unexpected pecuniary difficulties of the town, occasioned by its then peculiar situation and condition induced many to remove, which rendered it difficult for the remainder to support two ministers. Mr. Bulke-ley's salary as teacher being seventy pounds a year, some difficulties arose in the church on this account. These enkindled sparks of dissension and discord were shortly afterward fanned into flames, according to Cotton Mather, by "Mr. Bulkeley's pressing a piece of charity, disagreeable to the will of the ruling elder." The discord, however, was at last ended by the colony calling in the help of the council and by the abdication of Mr. Jones, the ruling elder.

In this dissension Thomas Wheeler took sides with Mr. Jones and was one of the number that left Concord in October, 1644, and went with Mr. Jones and settled Fairfield, Connecticut.

Thomas Wheeler became a prominent person in Fairfield, a large landowner and one of the proprietors of that township. He lived there until his death in 1654. Anne, his widow, survived him five years. They were both buried in Fairfield.

The following were their children, all born in Cranfield, as the records of that parish show:

1. Maria, baptized October 20, 1615. (Mentioned in her father's will but her name not given).

- x2. Anna (called in American records Hannah) baptized February 20, 1617.
- x3. William, baptized March 16, 1618.
- x4. Thomas, baptized April 8, 1620. ✕
- x5. John, baptized February 27, 1624.
- x6. Sarah, baptized August 10, 1628.

HANNAH (1.Thomas) baptized February 20, 1617 in Cranfield, county of Bedford, England. In American records she is called Hannah. She married in 1639, James Bennett of Fairfield, Conn. He came from England to Concord with the Rev. Peter Bulkeley.

3.

WILLIAM (1.Thomas) baptized March 16, 1618 in Cranfield, county of Bedford, England, came with his father from England, stayed awhile in Concord, afterward removed to Fairfield. However, finally settled at Oronoque on land given him by his father. The inventory of his property was sworn to in 1666 by Sarah Brooks as of her "husband Wheeler", deceased. She had married William Brooks. William Wheeler's nuncupative will, probated August 9, 1667, was attested to by Mirable Thompkins and Nathaniel Wheeler. He had gone to Delaware to settle, but died before removing his family. In his will he mentions his wife Sarah, brother Thomas of Milford, and his eldest and youngest son, and daughter, and his sister. Children:

- x7. William, married probably Ruth Smith, April 10, 1682.
- 8. Thomas.
- 9. Sarah, married James Briscoe, of Milford, December 6, 1676.

THOMAS (1.Thomas) was baptized in Cranfield, Bedfordshire, England, according to the parish register, on April 8, 1620. However, he was probably born not later than 1616. It is stated in some twon histories that Thomas' father, at the time of his arrival in this country, was a grandfather by reason of the fact that our subject brought with him from England a wife and children. This statement is not worthy of consideration. Thomas Wheeler, Junior, or Lieutenant Thomas Wheeler, as he was most frequently called, came from England with his father and the latter's family and lived awhile in Concord. And it was not until 1639 that he was married, and then he married in Concord, Joanna Seabrook, daughter of Robert and Alice Seabrook, who came from England about 1638 and settled in Stratford, Connecticut. (Their only children were four daughters, of whom Joanna was the eldest. The other three, Alice, Sarah and Tigden married respectively Thomas Sherwood, Thomas Fayrechild (or Fairchild) and William Preston of New Haven, Connecticut.

Joanna Wheeler, wife of Thomas Wheeler, Junior, (our subject) joined the church at Milford, Connecticut, apparently in 1640, and their children, John and Samuel, were baptized there August 16, 1640, yet Thomas Wheeler, Junior, signed a petition in Concord, Massachusetts, in 1643. In 1646, he had a house-lot in Milford, and in 1649 was living in Fairfield, where he was then in possession of a dwelling and several pieces of land. On January 21, 1653, he sold a dwelling house and house-lot in Fairfield and removed to Stratford, for the next year he accepted forty acres of land of the Indians at Derby, and the deed says he was of Stratford.

Thomas Wheeler's Deed of Gift.

"This present writing witnesseth that I, Towetanome, att pagaset and Raskonate, with ye consent of all Pagaset Indians, Doe frely and fully make from us our Heirs and assigns and Doe freely give a percell of land lying bee Twene Poodertoke River and Naugatuck River, Padertoke River bounding it on the Southwest, Naugatuck River Northeast; and Bounded on ye Northwest with trees marked by ourselves and other Indians; to Thomas Wheeler of Stratford, his Heirs and assigns for ever to possess it and doe ffree ye said land from all claims of any indian or indians; and this afore said land wee doe freely give to the afore said Thomas Wheeler and his Heirss for ever upon condition that hee come to live on it himself; and if the said Thomas Wheeler seles the land it must be to such a man as wee like, in witness here of we have sett toe our hands; May __, 1657.

Towetanimow, his mark.

In the presence of Raskenute, his mark.

Rith Wheeler,
Timothy Wheeler. Waampegon, his mark.

Manomp, his mark.

James, his mark."

The land is what is now Birmingham Point, in Derby, and in 1659, Thomas Wheeler was residing on it, but sold it in 1664 to Alexander Bryan for 200 pounds. On January 4, 1660, he says in a deed, "I, Thomas Wheeler, sell to Richard Booth.....of the same placemy dwelling house, lot, barn, and what thereto belongs."

In a paper recorded in Stratford in 1659, he says he formerly resided in Fairfield, and owned a farm there on the east side of Uncoway brook. This was at Black Rock. Soon after this (about 1662) he removed to Milford, Conn., where he lived afterwards, and was representative from that town in 1670 and 1671 and died November 26, 1672, providing for his wife Joanna his sons John and his daughters; Nathaniel and his wife Esther, who had removed to Newark, N. J., Ephraim, Thomas and Joseph. He mentions his brother William of Stratford and children, William, Thomas and Sarah. His widow Joanna died in January, 1673. Children:

- xl0. John, baptized August 16, 1640; married Sarah Sherwood; died May 12, 1704/
- 11. Samuel, baptized August 16, 1640; died young.
- xl2. Nathaniel, born about 1640, baptized February 20, 1642; married Esther Bottsford; died October 4, 1726 in Orange, N. J.

- 17. Josiah, born June 5, 1653 and died young probably.
- 18. Joseph, born November 23, 1655 and died 1655.
- xl9. Joseph, baptized 1660; born March 13, 1656-7. ✓

JOHN (1.Thomas) was baptized February 27, 1624 in Cranfield, England, came with his father from England, stayed awhile in Concord, Mass., afterward removed to Fairfield. He owned a large portion of Gover's Hill, at Black Rock near Bridgeport, Connecticut, where he resided, and in 1681 paid taxes on 1,004 acres of land, he being the third from the highest in the town of Fairfield, and was ancestor of William A. Wheeler, for four years Vice-President of the United States. Sergeant John Wheeler (for that was his title) died early in the year 1690, leaving an estate, inventoried March 8, 1689-90, at 1566 pounds, and a widow Elizabeth or Judith, with thirteen children. Her will was dated February 21, 1702-3 and probated March 24, 1703.

JOSEPH (4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born at Milford, Conn., March 13, 1656-7. He was married in the same place to Patience, daughter of Richard Holbrook, June, 1678, by Major Treat. I conjecture that his wife Patience died in Milford about 1700, and that thereupon he married Dorcas, whose surname may have possibly been Ward. Soon afterward he removed to Newark, N. J., and here he resided with his son Joseph until his death, which occurred sometime between June 25, 1725 (the date of his will) and September 15, 1727 (date of probate). In his will Joseph Wheeler describes himself as yeoman and mentions lands in Milford, and in "Wollington in the Naraganset" and at Port Royal. He also mentions his wife Dorcas and children: Joseph, Justice, Obadiah, Patience, Keziah and his son-in-law Samuel Farrand.

Children, all born in Milford and of his wife Patience Holbrook, who was born December 19, 1658:

His wife was living when he made his will and his son Thomas was to take care of her. His residence was probably at Black Rock, but he may have settled some years afterward on the northern portion of the Wheeler long lot, north part of Fairfield. 133.

EPHRAIM (65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas;

1.Thomas) was born August 5, 1718, o.s., near Newark, Essex County, New Jersey. He was married to Mary, whose surname was probably Foster. It is quite certain that Ephraim Wheeler lived the peaceful life of a farmer, tilling his goodly acres near Newark. And on this farm all of his children were undoubtedly born.

There is no record of a will of Ephraim Wheeler, but, according to the Essex County Administration Records an Ephraim Wheeler - a yeoman of Newark - was appointed on December 23, 1748, the guardian of Job Foster of Newark "an infant of upwards of fourteen." This Ephraim Wheeler may have been identical with our subject and Job Foster, a child of one of Ephraim's deceased sisters.

Right here let me make a statement that I think I owe the family - the descendants of this Ephraim Wheeler. It concerns a wide-spread, deep-rooted tradition that I am unable either to substantiate or to disprove by records.

In an old family Bible, bearing on the flyleaf "John Wheeler, Jr., June 15th, 1821" (undoubtedly the property of Col. John H. Wheeler), it is written that "Ephraim Wheeler, son of Joseph and Sarah, was born August the 5th, 1718." This entry begins the family records. Who the father of Joseph Wheeler was the family records do not state. However, in "Reminiscences and Memoirs of North Carolina and Eminent North Carolinians" by John H. Wheeler, on the first page of the memoir of the author, it is stated:

"In the latter end of the 17th Century, under a grant of land from Charles II., Joseph Wheeler emigrated from England, and settled in Newark, New Jersey. Like William Penn, he was the son of a gallant naval officer. Sir Francis Wheeler, an English admiral, was his father and the grant of land from the Crown was in reward for faithful services. He and his young wife had followed soon after the conquest of the New Netherlands by the Duke of York, son of Charles I., afterwards James II. To them was born, in 1718, their son Ephraim Wheeler, to whom, and his wife Mary, the first American John Wheeler was born in the year 1744."

This quoted from Moore's "Historical Sketches of Hertford County" (North Carolina). The author of these sketches, Maj. John Wheeler Moore, is a member of the family (vide p.109). I have corresponded with him and he writes me that his authority for saying Joseph Wheeler was the son of Admiral Sir Francis Wheeler, as well as his assertion relative to the grant of land from Charles II., is pure tradition, which he derived for the most part from his uncle, John H. Wheeler.

In his diary for 1875 (now in my possession)
Col. John H. Wheeler writes:

✓ "My Grandfather (Dr. John Wheeler), for whom I was called, born in 1747, and who died in Northampton County (N. C.), told me that his grandfather (Joseph Wheeler) came from England to America, about 1667, and settled in the colony of New York, under a grant of land from Charles II. for military services. He could and did explain the origin and names for several generations."

In a sketch of the family sent me by Mrs. Henrietta Mullen Wright, which was written by her father Samuel Wheeler Mullen, Esq., who was a grandson of Dr. John Wheeler (vide p.84) it is stated:

"According to family tradition the family emigrated from England about the year 1690. They settled a grant of land by the crown, for naval services, in the reign of Charles 2nd, situated near the place where the town of Newark stands, state of New Jersey. The family records were on parchment, and in possession of Stephen Wheeler, son of Ephraim and Mary Wheeler at the time of the war of the revolution, when that part of the country was overrun by the British and Hessian army; and to preserve them from the refugees and soldiery they were placed between the ceiling of the house, where they were destroyed by vermin."

Here is the family tradition from three sources - all emanating from Dr. John Wheeler. According to this tradition two things are related of Joseph Wheeler:

First, that he was the son of Admiral Sir Francis Wheeler; and Second, that he came to this country armed with a grant of land.

Consider the first assertion, that Joseph Wheeler was the son of Admiral Sir Francis Wheeler.

In endeavoring to substantiate this I have examined a number of books, but do not find that Sir Francis Wheeler (or Wheler) had a son by the name of Joseph. I have also corresponded with E. G. Wheler, Esq., of Claverdon Leys, Co. Warwick, England, who is a member of the same Wheler family to which the Admiral belonged. He writes me that

"During most of my life I have collected every scrap of information possible regarding my family, which was the easier, since, owing to their continued residence at Leamington Hastings for over 200 years, the registers are unusually complete."

Mr. Wheler sent me a chart showing all of the immediate descendants of Sir Francis Wheler.(x) According to this paper the Admiral's three children were William, Francis and Anna Sophia. My correspondent tells me that there is not a record of any of his family emigrating to America, nor even a tradition.

It will be observed in the foregoing quotations from the writings of members of the family that only Major Moore asserts that Joseph Wheeler was a son of Sir Francis. Col. John H. Wheeler does not go this

(x) The coat of arms of this Wheler or Wheeler family is: Arms: Or, a chevron between three leopard's faces, sable. Crest: Out of a ducal crown, or, an eagle displayed, gules. Motto: Facie tenus, meaning, Up to the mark,- a translation adopted for the want of a better.

far. However, the last named does say that his grandfather could and did explain the origin and names for several generations. And in his correspondence with the father of General Joseph Wheeler (see "Ancestors of Joseph and Daniella Wheeler" by Gen. Joseph Wheeler), ✓ Col. John H. Wheeler maintained that his family is a branch of the same Wheeler family to which Sir Francis belonged. Therefore, in my opinion, Major Moore's authority for saying Joseph was a son of the renowned English admiral is insufficient. X.

Now in regard to the grant of land - I have been equally unfortunate in my efforts to obtain records to support this tradition. I confess, however, that I have not worked this point as thoroughly as I might. It seems to me that there is surely somewhere a list of the grants of land in America made by Charles II. A careful search through the records in the office of the Secretary of (New York) State in Albany and in the office of the Secretary of (New Jersey) State in Trenton and in the proper office in England will confirm or disprove this tradition.

Now for my proofs in claiming that Joseph Wheeler of the Bible records was identical with the husband of Sarah Crane, and therefore a descendant of Thomas and Anne (Halsey) Wheeler of Fairfield, Conn. The Bible records show that the family resided at one time in or near Newark, New Jersey. In the Essex County probate records there is but one Joseph Wheeler that lived in Newark that had a wife Sarah and this Joseph was the husband of Sarah Crane. Moreover, the will of Joseph, the husband of Sarah Crane, names Ephraim as one of his children, and this Ephraim must have been born about 1718, for his brother Stephen (whose name in the will immediately follows Ephraim's) was, according to the inscription on his tombstone born in February, 1720-1.

I submit that there could not have been living in Newark at the same time two persons named Joseph Wheeler, whose wives were called Sarah, who had each a son named Ephraim of exactly the same age. If there were there would be some record of them.

My authority for the correctness of the ancestry of Joseph Wheeler, husband of Sarah Crane, rests upon the probate records of New Jersey, the town and church records of Milford, Conn., and Rev. Samuel Orcutt's genealogy of the Wheeler family as given in the second volume of his "History of Stratford and Bridgeport, Connecticut" on pages 1337 to 1342.

A Sketch of Dr. John Wheeler.

Dr. John Wheeler had bestowed upon him by his parents the best educational advantages -- in addition to a good common school education, he was educated as a physician.

At the beginning of the American Revolution, he assisted in raising a volunteer company (of which he became Surgeon) and with it joined a New York battalion attached to the army under Gen. Richard Montgomery and marched to Canada, enduring incredible sufferings in that inhospitable country in the most inclement season of the year.

After the siege and battle of Quebec (at which tradition says he caught the dying Montgomery in his arms) Dr. Wheeler returned to the bosom of his family to enjoy his fireside a little. He had not the happiness to enjoy it long for he was soon afterward taken prisoner and carried to Staten Island and from thence to New York, which was then in the hands of the British. There in prison, under the noted Cunningham, celebrated for wickedness and cruelty, he endured sufferings from which, had it not been for the excellence of his constitution, he certainly would have sunken. By the assistance of friends, who were in the British interests, he obtained his release from prison on condition that he should remain neutral during the war. As his fellow-prisoners were dying daily by dozens, and he reduced to a mere skeleton by the jail distemper and cruel usage, and seeing no prospect of any exchange of prisoners, at the same time having a delicate wife and five small children on Long Island, surrounded by the enemy, Dr. Wheeler complied with the proposition and remained in New York with his family during the remaining part of the war. (It is asserted, however, by some of his descendants that soon after his release from prison he joined the army under Gates and was with Gates and Greene, his successor, throughout the whole Southern campaign of the Revolution.) In consequence of his living with the British, his property was confiscated and sold. ✓ ✓

After the war, Dr. Wheeler went to the Province of New Brunswick, but not being pleased with the management of the British Commissioners, he returned to New Jersey, where he lived until 1803, when he removed to New York. In the year 1807, he removed to Murfreesboro, North Carolina, and, with his wife, took up his residence with his son John, who several years before had removed to Murfreesboro and established a large mercantile business.

Dr. Wheeler spent the last days of his life in Murfreesboro, practising his profession and during spare time cultivating his garden, for which he had great taste. He died there October 4, 1814.

He was curious in chemistry and was celebrated for his exquisite extracts from bergamot, lavender and other perfumes. He wrote largely on medical subjects and left to his grandson, Dr. Samuel J. Wheeler, several works in manuscript on medical science which evinced the depth of his acquaintance and devotion to his profession.

"He was a genius," says his grandson, Col. John H. Wheeler, in one of his diaries, "but erratic as genius generally is, of a restless, roving temper; of him might well be said, as Jacob did of one of his sons, 'Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel.' I record this as a warning to those who inherit his blood that they may guard against this trait, which I often feel would lead me from a steady, consistent course. He was also of a poetic, imaginative temper, and sometimes indulged in writing poetry. Well does my memory trace the old English ballads, such as 'Chevy Chas' and others, that he early taught me, and which I can never forget as long as 'memory holds a seat in this distracted globe.'"

His wife, Elizabeth Longworth Wheeler, was model of piety and virtue. She was a daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth (Rogers) Longworth of Newark, N. J. and a niece of Gov. Aaron Oden, who filled a great figure both in peace and in war. She was also a cousin of Nicholas Longworth, Esq., of Cincinnati, Ohio, (grandfather of Hon. Nicholas Longworth, now (1905) a Member of Congress from Ohio) distinguished for his culture of the vine and great wealth. Dr. Wheeler left her for a better world, as I have said, in 1814, and lies buried beside his wife in Northampton County on the banks of the Meherrin River near Murfreesboro.

She was born December 9, 1795 in Northampton County and died July 13, 1833 at Murfreesboro, N. C. John Wheeler died August 7, 1832 at Murfreesboro, N. C. and was buried there.

The records and tradition do not tell where John Wheeler was educated. In all probability it was at Newark, N. J. near his birthplace. We first hear of him as a clerk and then as a partner of his uncle, David Longworth, a bookseller and publisher in New York City. Several of the early editions of the New York directory, we are told, bear the imprint of the firm of "Longworth & Wheeler, New York."

While engaged in the publishing business, Mr. Wheeler made the acquaintance of Zedekiah Stone, a rich farmer of Bertie County, North Carolina, and the father of Gov. Stone. Mr. Stone persuaded the young bookseller to come South and become his partner. This he did and was in the mercantile business at Windsor, N. C., with Mr. Stone until the latter's death. Then Mr. Wheeler left Windsor for Murfreesboro where he began business for himself and with a large family and his own parents spent the remainder of his life.

His son Col. John H. Wheeler in one of his diaries speaks of his father as being a "mariner and merchant." And in another Col. Wheeler makes entry under the heading "Diary of Events":

"1820. Made a voyage to Burmudas in capacity of Supercargo, in my father's schooner, 'The Pacific,' Capt. Joel Thorp."

In addition to being a large merchant and exporter, I am told he also operated a tannery and that the remains of the works could be still seen at Murfreesboro not many years ago.

From the papers of that day the following is copied:

"Died, on Tuesday, the 7th of August (1832) at his residence, in the town of Murfreesboro, John Wheeler, Esq., Postmaster of said place, in the 62d year of his age.

"He was one of the earliest inhabitants of the village in which he died. He had seen it grow up, from one or two scattering houses, to the appearance it now presents. In all his dealings with mankind he was distinguished for his integrity of character and honesty of purpose. As a citizen, he was faithful to every trust committed to his care; as a Christian, he was a humble and devout member of the Baptist church for above thirty years; as a father, he was kind and indulgent to his numerous family; and as a husband, he was always affectionate. In all his relations to society he sustained an unblemished reputation; he lived respected by all who knew him, and died deeply mourned by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

"During his long, severe, and fatal illness, he manifested the utmost patience and submission to the decrees of an all-wise Providence. He retained his faculties to the last moment. When the hand of death pressed upon him, he was conscious of the toucher, and did not shrink from it. He embraced his affectionate relations who were mourning around him, and composedly bid them "farewell." He said he felt he was dying; that it was not so hard to die as he thought; he was not afraid to die, that he knew he was going to an eternal rest. Such was the triumphant end of the good man.

"Sure the last end of the good man is peace
How calm his exist!
Night dews fall not more gently to the ground,
Nor weary worn-out winds expire so soft."

Thomas) was born June 24, 1775 in Essex County, near Newark, New Jersey, married Sarah, daughter of James and Elizabeth Parsons of Alexandria, Virginia, December 19, 1803 at Alexandria. She was born January 2, 1776 at Alexandria and died there June 20, 1816. He married second, Jane, daughter of Hervey Summers and Isabella (Shaw) Summers of Alexandria, Va., July 24, 1817 at Alexandria. She was born in Alexandria about 1795 and died there September 9, 1843. Samuel Wheeler died April 3, 1835 in Alexandria and was buried there.

At the old paternal homestead near Newark, N. J., Samuel Wheeler passed his boyhood days. And it must have been at or near here too that he was educated - most likely in the country schools nearby. On attaining his majority he went to New York City and learned the shoe business. Two years later, about 1798, he was sent by his employer to Alexandria, Virginia, as Super-cargo of a vessel load of shoes. Mr. Wheeler was so pleased with the result of the sale of the shoes, and with the then flourishing town, that he did not return to New York, but, after settling for the cargo entrusted to him, opened a shoe manufactory in Alexandria, married, and resided in his old mansion on Prince Street near Payne until his death.

His first wife, Miss Sarah Parsons, was a daughter of James Parsons, who was one of the builders of Christ's Church. This edifice has the historic merit of having been the house of prayer George Washington attended in Alexandria. That Mrs. Wheeler was a true and noble Christian woman is evidenced by the following obituary copied by the writer from "The Alexandria Herald" of Wednesday, June 26, 1816, on file in the Library of Congress, Washington:

"Departed this life, on Thursday last, at the house of Mrs. H. Adams, Fairfax County, Mrs. Sarah Wheeler, in the 40th year of her age, consort of Mr. Samuel Wheeler, of this place.

"This amiable woman had just entered her 15th year when, by the preaching of the gospel, she was brought to the experimental knowledge of the truth; and was from that time a pattern of patience, humility and self-denial. As she drew near the close of life it afforded her peculiar consolation that the flower of her days were devoted to the Lord, and not to the vain pleasures and foolish passions of the world; through grace, she was enabled cheerfully to resign a beloved companion and five small children. It may truly be said, her last end was peace - speaking of the mansions of the blessed she said, "there I shall see Abraham and all the Patriarchs, and prophets with the good of all ages, but best of all there I shall see Jesus, cast my crown at his feet, and praise him forever - let me die the death of the righteous and my last end be like his."

A photograph of Mrs. Sarah Wheeler's tombstone, taken by the writer, is given on the opposite page. It is a sandstone slab, about three and a half feet high, two feet wide and three inches thick and somewhat browned by age. The family lot, in which Mrs. Wheeler lies buried, is in the extreme Southwestern corner of the Methodist-Episcopal Cemetery, just outside of Alexandria.

After his first wife's death, Mr. Wheeler married again. I copy the brief notice of the fact from "The Alexandria Herald" of Monday, July 28, 1817:

"MARRIED

On Thursday evening, by the Rev. Isaac Robbins, Mr. Samuel Wheeler, to Miss Jane Summers, both of this place."

In 1835 Mr. Wheeler ended his earthly career and lies buried beside his first wife in Alexandria. From all accounts, he was a very successful merchant and was entrusted by his fellow-citizens with several responsible offices in the government of Alexandria.

Robert Munro was born about 1776 and died April 9, 1852 at Washington, D. C. They never had any children. I am told that Mr. Munro was engaged in some kind of manufacturing industry in Alexandria which necessitate the employment of a large number of persons, including young women, and that his wife was well-known for her generosity and kindness to these employees, especially to the young women.

EPHRAIM (246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19. Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born January 22, 1785 in the Province of New Brunswick, probably at St. John. He married Mary Kimberly Waring, daughter of Henry and Susan (?) Waring of Brooklyn, N. Y., October 18, 1820 at Brooklyn. She was born December 29, 1797 at Brooklyn and died October 9, 1822 at Murfreesboro, N. C. He died January 9, 1825 at Murfreesboro, N. C.

Ephraim Wheeler was associated in business with his brother, John, in North Carolina. In commercial dealings he became acquainted with Henry Waring, Esq. of the firm of Kimberly & Waring, Merchants, of Brooklyn, N. Y. It was through Mr. Waring that he met his charming daughter, Miss Mary, and after a brief courtship was married to her. Mr. Wheeler brought his wife to his home in Murfreesboro, N. C., and here their only child was born in 1821. Mrs. Wheeler died the next year and Mr. Wheeler himself, about three years later. Thier son who was reared by his uncle John, died in early mahhood unmarried, after having been graduated from college with high honors.

The following, a copy of a letter, the writer has in his possession, attests the fact that Ephraim Wheeler was a Christian gentleman of high character:

"Murfreesborough, Sept 4th 1815.

Dear Mother:

I arrived here about three weeks ago and have concluded to stay and assist Brother John in his business. He calculates to be in New York in three or four weeks.

It was with a great deal of satisfaction we received your letter and understood that you had such a good passage. I hope your sickness has gone off and that you will live many years a blessing to your children. I have been and still am in very good health. I think I have somewhat fallen away since I left Norfolk, perhaps it may be on account of the difference of air and diet.

I have not been to the plantation yet, but occasionally see Isaac who informs me that Molly and her child are well. He brought me a watermelon a few days ago. I told him I had no change. He wished me to accept it as a present from him with such humble tokens of affection for the family, that called a number of melancholy ideas to my remembrance such as his Master, Mistress and old Master being all gone to the grave. And, my dear old Mother, Betsey and the little children having left the country, and shortly I only shall remain perhaps never to see you more. These reflections occurred and almost melted me into tears.

"I wish to do right my dear Mother in all my thoughts, words and actions, and these words often occur to me:

"Let the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart be acceptable to thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my Redeemer."

We have but a short time to stay in this world, and if I can so fill up my time in useful employment with reasonable gains I hope I shall be contented; and I believe I can say without hesitation that if my mother can be contented and easy for the remaining part of her life it will add greatly to my happiness.

I shall always be glad to hear from you and the family. My affectionate regard to Martha Johnston and family.

Yours sincerely,

E. Wheeler."

The only child of Ephraim and Mary (Waring)

Wheeler was:

454. Henry Waring, born July 24, 1821; died unmarried.

TRUMAN B. (315.Truman; 211.Truman; 109.Obadiah; 44.John; 10.John; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born November 1, 1819 at Southbury, Conn. Left home at the age of twelve and entered the employ of "Smith & Greves," merchants in New Haven, Conn. He remained with them until of age and then went to Wilmington, N. C., as clerk in a store. Afterward "Smith & Greves" opened a dry goods store in Vicksburg, Miss., and in a few years Mr. Wheeler bought the business himself. Being sole owner he was very successful and was a man of wealth until the Civil War. Then being an ardent sympathizer with the Confederates he spent his fortune freely and after the war was over found himself nearly a ruined man. Fortunately he owned many farms North and paper mills, etc. so he had a home to come to in the North. A very much discouraged and disappointed man here he lived and died.

In 1855 he married Miss Harriett Robertson, a native of Edinborough, Scotland, who came to this country and was a teacher in a Southern family in St.

Joseph, Louisiana. She came to this place and lived only eight months. She died February 6, 1856 and was buried here (Southbury, Connecticut). It is in Fairfield County, Connecticut. He has been a very temperate man in all things throughout life; has been a great reader and is able now (1899) to read without glasses. He has never been very active in politics, though in 1848-49 he represented Newtown in the state legislature. Since 1856 he has been a Republican and through life has been an attendant of the Congregational Church. On February 22, 1837, he married Lydia Ann Botsford, born November 29, 1813, daughter of Charles and Fanny (Mannington) Botsford. She died March 15, 1873.

He died April 5, 1814. I am told that, against her father's will, this young lady ran away and was married and that in consequence her father completely ignored her and never entered her house until her death.

JOHN HILL (340.John; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born

August 2, 1806 at Murfreesboro, N. C., married 1st. Mary Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Rev. Obadiah Bruen Brown and Elizabeth (Riley) Brown of Washington, D. C. April 19, 1830 at Washington. She was born September 1, 1810 at Washington, D. C. and died October 4, 1836 at Millwood, Frederick County, Virginia. He married 2d. Ellen Oldmixon Sully, daughter of Thomas Sully and Sarah (Annis) Sully of Philadelphia, Pa., November 8, 1838 at Philadelphia. She was born January 22, 1816 in Philadelphia, Pa., and died August 6, 1896 in Washington, D. C. He resided in North Carolina and Washington, D. C., and died December 7, 1882 in Washington and was buried in Oak Hill Cemetery, Georgetown, D. C.

It would be impossible for the writer, in the limited space at his disposal, to do anything more than outline the eventful career of John H. Wheeler. He was sent to school to Rev. James Wright on Portucarey Creek, Northampton Co., N. C., when he was but six years of age. In 1813, he went to Hertford Academy, N. C., at that time under the charge of Jonathan Otis Freeman, D. D., an eminent divine. In January, 1822, he entered the preparatory school of the Columbian College (now George Washington University) near Washington City, at its opening; one of the first pupils of that institution. He was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the class of 1826. One year later he was reading law under the direction of Henry W. Long, Esq., and Judge John Louis Taylor, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. In August of the same year (1827) he was elected a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina and took his seat in November,--the youngest member in the House. In 1828 he was examined and licensed to practice law and also received the degree of Master of Arts from the University of North Carolina. In 1829 and 1830 he was re-elected to the legislature. Then state legislatures were honored bodies, and secured some of the best talent in the states.

This legislature contained many eminent and able men, among them were Judges Gaston, Nash and Bailey, George E. Spriguell, John M. Morehead, and James Iredell, and many more. To win a position in such a body was the promise of a fruitful manhood, in a youth just twenty-one years of age. For an earnest and aspiring mind it proved a valuable school. Success was not to be hoped for without severe study and thorough preparation. Conscientiousness in the execution of the great trust committed to him by a generous and proud constituency marked his every effort for he could not bear to see their dignity overshadowed. He summoned all his powers to the work, and won for himself a conspicuous and honorable position. So well did he perform the task assigned to him that his approving constituents in his twenty-fifth year of his age nominated him for Congress, but after a severely-contested and gallant canvass, he was defeated by the more experienced candidate, Hon. William B. Shepard.

President Jackson in 1832 appointed Mr. Wheeler Secretary to the Board of Commissioners under the treaty with France to adjudicate the claims of American citizens for spoillations under the Berlin and Milan decrees.

On January 17, 1837, he was nominated by President Jackson as Superintendent of the United States Branch Mint at Charlotte, N. C., but in 1841 shared the political fortune of his friends and party; and in 1842 removed to "Ellangowan" - his beautiful country home at Beattie's Ford on the Catawba River, N. C. In November, 1842, he was elected by the Legislature of North Carolina Treasurer of the State. After his term of office had expired he again retired to his rural home off the banks of the Catawba, and, aided by the suggestion of his friend, Gov. Swain, began the patriotic labor of writing "Wheeler's History of North Carolina," on which he was engaged about ten years. Col. Wheeler gave his work to the public in 1851. It was a complete success, and is highly esteemed as a faithful record of a most interesting and remarkable people. In 1852 he was again elected to the legislature. In 1853 he was appointed by President Pierce as the latter's Assistant Private Secretary, and in the same year took up his residence in Washington. On his forty-eighth birthday Col. Wheeler was appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, Minister Resident of the United States near the Republic of Nicaragua, Central America. This was considered, from the position of the country and the complications as to the protectorate assumed by England, as an important and delicate mission. Mr. Everett of Massachusetts, in March, 1853, stated in the Senate that it was more important than the mission to London or to Paris.

The revolution in that country and the advent of Willie Walker and his followers, with their leader as president, were incidents of Col. Wheeler's iministration. He thought he saw in Walker's movement in the government he purposed to establish the only hope for the peace of the country, and promptly recognized his authority. This act was not approved by Secretary Marcy and he requested Col. Wheeler's recall. But the President decided that he was not to be recalled without a hearing. His reply to Secretary Marcy's strictures was triumphant, and the President refused to recall him. Col. Wheeler however resigned his mission in 1857 and returned to his home in the national capital very much broken down in health.

So long as he lived he claimed his legal residence to be in North Carolina. On his door plate was that name coupled with his own, and over the breast of his encoffined form was engraved the name so dear to him. In all his thoughts, and in all his journeyings, his heart yearned toward North Carolina, and within the borders of that state he would have preferred interment.

The last years of his life were spent in statistical labor and gathering material for an enlarged history of North Carolina. In 1863 he made a journey to Europe for the latter purpose, and, far from the desolating and sanguinary events of the war, in which he was too old to be an actor, he sought the treasures of the British archives and buried himself in that wonderful collection. But death came just as he was about to give his work to the press. However, his son Woodbury, assisted by Senator Fowler of Tennessee, carefully edited his manuscript and printed it in 1884 under the title of "Reminiscences and Memoirs of North Carolina and Eminent North Carolinians."

Col. Wheeler was a sincere believer in the salutary influence of labor directed by method. Ardent labor, regulated by reason, is the price of excellence. He that would win the latter, cannot dispense with the former.

Time was a sacred trust that no one could neglect without evil. Thoroughly realizing its demands, with earnest purpose and willingness, he consecrated all to the noblest ends of life. Knowing that the brightest genius and the most brilliant powers could avail but little if this trust was not executed with system, he introduced by means of faithfully kept diaries and other books the most convenient order into all his labors, so that he could call up the gleanings of years in a moment.

A systematic and laborious scholar, he enriched his understanding from the treasures of many tongues. The English furnished him the richest stores, and he had drunk deeply at her purest fountains. Into his tenacious and fruitful memory, were joined the wealth of the prose and poetry of that wonderful people, whose intelligence, more than their arms, has filled the world. He was familiar with all the great dramatists. The great poems of Shakespeare, he could repeat with a power rarely equalled by the first actors of his time.

His friendships were ardent and sincere, and his devotion to his friends knew no bounds; influence, purse, life itself, if in the right, were at their service. Attachments so strong and pure, insured a loving and faithful husband, and an indulgent and devoted father, and a kind and generous neighbor. In all his relations of life he filled the measure of a noble manhood; tender and charitable to the afflicted and courteous to the prosperous. He ever sought to mitigate the asperities of life, those rude blasts that visit too often every home.

The social qualities of Col. Wheeler were of the highest order. His warm heart, his classic wit, and mirth-creating humor, made him the favorite of all circles in which intelligence, refinement and graceful address were desired.

Not less fortunate in his political associations, he knew personally all the presidents and cabinet officers from the administration of Jefferson to that of Arthur. He had been the confidential friend of Jackson, Pierce and Johnson, and was by them called to counsel and advice. He did not look to high official station for the richest manifestation of intellectual and moral worth. He had too often seen the most commanding positions occupied by presuming inferiority, through the labors and merits of the modest and deserving. By the fruits of their lives he esteemed the actors of the age in which they lived and worked. His work, "Reminiscences of North Carolina and Eminent North Carolinians" discloses his estimation of characters that figured in the moral and political life of the state and nation far better than any sketch of his life. It also presents with equal force his moral, social and political preferences and appreciations.

SAMUEL JORDAN (340.John; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born October 5, 1810 in Murfreesboro, N. C., married Lucinda Pugh Bond, daughter of Lewis Bond and Catherine (Pugh) Bond of Bertie County, N. C. at Willow Hall Plantation, Bertie County, N. C., April 14, 1836. Resided in Murfreesboro and at Willow Hall Plantation, died September 8, 1879 at Willow Hall Plantation and was buried on the banks of the Roanoke River, near the Bonds above mentioned. Mrs. Wheeler was born November 20, 1814 at Quitsna, Bertie County, N. C. and died December 9, 1879 at Willow Hall Plantation.

Dr. Samuel Jordan Wheeler was probably one of, if not the most, liberally educated members of the family. He began his schooling at the Hertford Academy, N. C. and upon completing the course there, and growing old enough to be sent away from home, he matriculated at Columbian College (now George Washington University). Receiving his bachelor's degree here, he went to Union College (now University), Schenectady, N.Y. and completed a course of study in medicine. He then entered the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, October, 1830 and received therefrom the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1833. After his graduation at the last named institution, he studied medicine for a while with Dr. Nathan Chapman in Philadelphia, but at length left there and took up his residence in North Carolina - his native state.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, he raised, and was commissioned colonel of, a regiment of cavalry that acted as home guards for the Confederacy.

Dr. Wheeler resided for the most part at Murfreesboro and "Willow Hall" where he practiced his profession for a number of years, but his health failing he retired from active practice and served for a number of years as postmaster in Murfreesboro.

In addition to being a Christian gentleman of the highest type, Dr. Wheeler was an earnest co-laborer in the cause of religion and education as the Baptist Church of Murfreesboro and the Chowan Institute evidence.

JULIA MUNRO (340.John; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born April 28, 1814 at Murfreesboro, N. C., married Dr. Godwin Cotton^E Moore, son of James Wright Moore and Esther (Cotton^E) Moore of "Mulberry Grove," Hertford County, North Carolina, June 28, 1832 at Murfreesboro, N. C. She resided at "Mulberry Grove" and died and was buried there May 11, 1885. He was born September 1, 1806 at "Mulberry Grove" and died and was buried there May 12, 1880.

Dr. Godwin Cotton^E Moore was born and reared at "Mulberry Grove" - the homestead of his ancestors of the Cotton^E family for several generations. He was educated at the Hertford Academy in Murfreesboro, N. C. and at the university in the same state; studied medicine and graduated at the University of Pennsylvania and enjoyed a long and successful career as an able and acceptable physician. His skill in the healing art was surpassed only by his genial and generous disposition.

He entered public life as a member of the House of Commons, N. C., in 1831, in the Senate of 1842; and again in the Commons in 1866. Modest and retiring in his disposition he never was ambitious of political favor; his was the popularity that sought him, not that which was pursued. In 1837 he was urged and did become a candidate for Congress against Hon. Samuel T. Sawyer, and again, against Hon. Kenneth Rayner. The canvass was irksome and no one regretted his defeat less than himself.

Dr. Moore was an exemplary member of the Baptist Church, and for forty years continuously elected Moderator of the Chowan Association.

He died May 12, 1880 at his birth place, and lies buried within a stone's throw of the old mansion.

JUNIUS BRUTUS (340.John; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born February 21, 1830 at Murfreesboro, N. C., married Emily Truxtun Beale, daughter of George Beale and Emily (Truxtun) Beale of Washington, D. C., September 18, 1855 at Washington, D. C. Resides at West Point, N. Y. and North Carolina, died at Lenoir, N. C., July 15, 1886 and buried there. She was born September 7, 1832 at Washington, D. C., died November 6, 1880 at West Point, N. Y.

Junius B. Wheeler after finishing at the country schools near Murfreesboro, N. C. entered the University of that State. But when he had been at the last named institution but a short while he ran away and going further South became a printer. Then we hear of him, while still at boy, a volunteer in Capt. William J. Clarke's company in the Mexican War. He was in every battle from Vera Cruz to the City of Mexico. At the fiercely contested affair at the Nacional Puente, one of the lieutenants was killed, and young as he was, he was appointed by the President as the successor, on the report of his commanding officer, now on file, that "he had seen young Wheeler under heavy fire, and he had proved to the command that he was made of the stuff of which heroes are made." On his return from Mexico young Wheeler resigned his commission in the army and was appointed by the President a cadet at West Point, where he was graduated among the first of his class.

During the Civil War he served with credit as First Lieutenant and Captain of Corps of Engineers, U. S. A. "Brevetted Major, April 30, 1864 for gallant and meritorious services at the Battle of Jenkin's Ferry, Ark." And on March 13, 1865, was brevetted Lieutenant Colonel and Colonel for "gallant and meritorious services during the Rebellion."

After serving for several years in the Corps of Engineers in Missouri, Mississippi, Washington, D. C., and on the great lakes and elsewhere, he was appointed on September 16, 1871 to succeed Professor Mahan at the Military Academy as "Professor of Civil and Military Engineering and the Science of War." He held this position for almost thirteen years.

On September 29, 1884, his health failing, he was, on his own application, retired from active service and spent the last two years of his life as a farmer near Lenois, N. C.

Colonel Wheeler was the author of the "Elements of the Art and Science of War," 1878; "Elements of Military Engineering," 1883-4; and the "Elements of Civil Engineering," 1884. All of these works have been adopted by the government and are used as text-books in the Military Academy.

Together with his rare qualities of mind, Col. Wheeler was endowed with a beautiful and noble character, coupled with a charming and easy address. He was respected and loved by all who knew him.

JAMES PARSONS (342.Samuel; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born January 20, 1812 at Alexandria, Virginia, married Sarah Ray Casey, daughter of Hiram Casey and Catherine (Depriest) Casey of Smith County, afterward of Hardeman County, Tennessee, in Hardeman County, July 30, 1849. Resided in Hardeman County, near Middleburg, Tennessee, died December 9, 1882 in Hardeman County, Tenn., and was buried there ten miles from Bolivar. She was born June 10, 1815 on Smith County, Tennessee, and died September 26, 1875 in Hardeman County, Tenn.

It has been my aim in compiling these records to relieve when possible the tedium of constant repetition of dry facts concerning the birth, marriage, and death - common to every one's life - by a sketch of the person's career, and when a career savors of the romantic I jot down the romance in the hope of enlivening these pages.

Why James Parsons Wheeler, who like his brothers was born, reared, and educated in Alexandria, Virginia, should take up his home in Tennessee has a romantic explanation. It was all on account of the beautiful Louisa Mead, a belle of Alexandria in the days of bodices and hoop-skirts. James loved the beautiful Louisa, and so did his brother Jabez. But Jabez won the beauty, and, at the present time, it is not definitely known by what means he achieved success. Some conjecture that he won in a fair contest by a preponderance of personal charms, and was Louisa's choice. Others says that through some artifice Jabez managed to keep his brother away from the Mead house. Still others insist that ~~it~~ was through brotherly love and natural magnanimity that James allowed his brother to win. Certain it is that soon after Jabez and the beautiful Louisa were married James went to seek his fortune in the mountainous regions of Tennessee. And there in Hardeman County as a pedagogue he lived and died; meanwhile marrying and rearing two hardy sons that now farm the paternal acres.

In addition to his love of beautiful women - a Wheeler characteristic - James also possessed a number of other family traits, such as a gentle, sympathetic nature, and a fondness for expressing his strong emotions in verse. The following is one of his poems:

"Oh Take Me Home!

"Lines on the death of Miss Jane E. Wheeler, who breathed her last on board the Steamer 'Herald' from Norfolk to Baltimore, February 18, 1846. She had left the home of her relatives in North Carolina some weeks since, where she had gone for her health, her friends hoping it might restore the color to her cheeks and the lustre to her eyes; but their hopes were doomed to be blighted. Finding herself gradually sinking, she anxiously desired to reach her home and die surrounded by her friends. Alas! her wish was not gratified. On her passage from Norfolk her pure spirit passed away.

"On! take me quickly to my home,
E're this weak pulse shall cease to beat;
And let me breathe my native air,
And once again those loved ones greet.

Hasten, oh hasten 'ere this frame
Shall sink 'neath the destroyer's hand;

And lay me gently down to die,
Amid the zephyrs of my land!

This laboring breath, this hollow cough,
Too surely speak of swift decay -
And oh! this burning heat I feel,
My life is ebbing fast away.

No dear, familiar friend is nigh,
To wipe the death damps from my brow,
No loved ones near my couch of pain
To soothe the grief which haunts me now.

But yes - oh yes - there is one friend,
Dearer than all, sure He is near,
He smiles and on my spirit sheds
A calm which quiets each rising fear.

I see bright angels near me stand,
And one a glittering crown doth bear;
Oh! list ~~that~~ silvery notes are those
That round me swell - they fill the air!

My Mother! oh, I see her now,
With form all beautiful and bright,
She calls me! oh, what scenes are there
Which dazzling greet my raptured sight!

x x x x x x x

Her head fell lightly on her breast,
The strings of life were gently riven;
Her lips were parted, as in prayer,
And her bright spirit passed to Heaven.

Oh she was far too pure for earth!
Then let no bitter tears be shed
O'er her young and sleeping form,
Resting within its earthen bed."

JABEZ (342.Samue; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65. Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born September 3, 1813 in Alexandria, Virginia, married Louisa Mead, daughter of Samuel Mead and Eleanor (McCutchinson) Mead of Glasgow, Scotland, in Alexandria, Va., on March 6, 1836. Resided in Alexandria, Virginia and Washington, D. C., died January 24, 1887 in Washington, D. C. and buried there in Glenwood Cemetery. She was born August 28, 1816 in Alexandria, Va. and died November 24, 1891 in Washington, D. C.

As far as his education was concerned, the early life of Jabez Wheeler was very much like his brothers. He went to shhool in Alexandria - his birthplace - and in early manhood came to Washington. As a confidential clerk in a large mercantile establishment in the capital city he spent his professional life, contentedly preferring this obscure existence to the many public positions that were often within his reach. This quiet and simple manner of living was in keeping with his character, and was but a manifestation of the sound rule of life that was the undercurrent of his career.

It is not the ability or the achievements of Jabez Wheeler that commend him to us as a model, but his beautiful character, his pure and blameless life. In contemplating these all other things (usually interesting in a biography) vanish and we are satisfied with them alone.

It is related of him that his love of the truth was so strong ~~that~~ even in boyhood he was so scrupulously exact that his father once said to him: "Jabez, run the risk of telling a lie."

Tenderness of heart, a sympathetic and gentle nature, a love of the beautiful, the noble and pure - all characteristics of the Wheeler family - he possessed in an eminent degree. Inheriting from his Grandfather Wheeler an aptitude for expressing in verse the emotions of his inner self and those noble thoughts with which he always kept company, he has left us many poems - mostly religious - which are worthy of preservation. I cannot do better than to conclude this sketch with a selection from "Jottings" - one of his books before me on my desk:

"Endurance.

"Blest be the uncomplaining one,
 However his lot be cast,
 Who cheered by Hope in every state,
 Is steadfast to the last.

Is steadfast, though each flower decay,
 Trained with such tender care
 Through the night's darkness or the day,
 Though every hope be bare.

Though life its common gifts deny,
 A sojourner below,
 With every fount of blessing dry,
 Right steadily I go.

I go as Abraham went before,
 At God's supreme command;
 I rest upon the mountain top,
 And there by faith I stand.

I stand to do or not to do,
 At His Almighty will,
 To travel through the wilderness,
 Or hear His voice be still.

Thus may I do, no will of mine,
 But live by simple faith;
 This be my heart's supreme desire,
 To do what Jesus saith.

What Jesus saith, I humbly ask,
 And trust to him alone;
 His will would be my only task,
 His gracious will be done."

EPHRAIM (342.Samuel; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.

Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born December 20, 1815 in Alexandria, Virginia, married Martha E.
 Creighton, daughter of John Creighton and Anne (MCaulley)
 Creighton of Baltimore, Maryland, at Alexandria, Va.,
 March 24, 1836. Resided in Washington, D. C., died there
 January 6, 1892 and was buried in Congressional Cemetery in that place. She was born June 16, 1816 in Alexandria, Virginia, and died December 23, 1882 in Washington, D. C.

Ephraim Wheeler was born in his father's mansion in Alexandria, Virginia, was educated there, married and had established himself in business in that town before attaining his majority.

About 1844, he removed to Washington and became permanently identified with its interests. For many years he was in the hardware business on Pennsylvania Avenue, opposite the Metropolitan Hotel and later on Louisiana Avenue.

As a member of the Common Council in 1849-50 and 1851 and of the Board of Alderman in 1852 and 1853, Mr. Wheeler did his share in shaping the destinies of the growing capital. He was captain of the company of Continentals, and always cherished his commission signed by the President. Rarely, if ever since its organization did he miss a meeting of the Society of the Oldest Inhabitants, of which he was an honored member. On account of his remarkable memory of events and persons, especially connected with the history of Alexandria and the vicinity, his recitals of reminiscences were unusually interesting and instructive.

From early youth he was connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church, a class leader and active worker. At the time of his death he was a member of Hamline Church, and rarely was missed from his place on Sundays or regular meetings.

Mr. Wheeler was a man of high character and firm convictions. Being once satisfied in his own conscience that to do a certain thing was right, no amount of persuasion could make him refrain from so doing. He was also very kind hearted, sympathetic and generous, and was ever ready to come to the aid of the needy when it was in his power.

Mrs. Wheeler was a woman of a retiring disposition, greatly devoted to her home life and dearly beloved by those who knew her best. She will ever be remembered for her deeds of charity by those whose troubles she shared with loving kindness. She has left behind her a memory fragrant with the blossoms of unobtrusive piety and gentle goodness.

CHARLES SULLY (423.John Hill; 340.John; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born November 6, 1839 in Charlotte, North Carolina, married 1st Frances Florence Osborne, daughter of Orlando Cannon Osborne and Margaret Ann C. Charles Sully Wheeler's education, like that of his brother, began near Beattie's Ford, North Carolina, under the tutelage of an old school master, reputed by many to have been the renowned Marshal Ney. Afterward he attended Columbian College near Washington, D. C.

His father mapped out for him the career of a naval officer, and on September 27, 1854, Mr. Wheeler entered the United States Naval Academy by appointment from Hon. Thomas L. Clingman of North Carolina. Among his classmates at the Academy were many who subsequently became distinguished naval officers. Among them many be mentioned the name of Admiral George Dewey.

But the career of a naval officer was not destined to become Mr. Wheeler's life work. His father was then in Central America representing the United States in the capacity of Minister, and the notoriety which Gen. William Walker, "the little gray-eyed man of destiny," was achieving by his exploits in that country, penetrated the old Academy walls and enkindled within the breast of young Midshipman Wheeler so ardent a desire to be with his father and to see and experience some of Walker's adventures that paternal remonstrance and advice could not withstand his pleadings and entreaties.

Young Wheeler resigned from the Academy in 1856 and joined his father in Central America. A few skirmishes with Walker sufficed to teach the adventurous youth that his life was at a discount when he was serving under such a leader as Walker, who considered men as mere checkers to be played in a game whose sole object was his own advancement.

On September 19, 1859, Mr. Wheeler was commissioned by President Buchanan a Third Lieutenant in the U. S. Revenue Cutter Service. At the beginning of the Civil War, in 1861, the revenue cutter of which Lieut. Wheeler was Executive Officer, was detached from the revenue service and attached to the 9th Army Corps and co-operated with the U. S. Navy. But the strain and exposure incident to the seaman's life soon began to tell on Lieut. Wheeler, and on July 13, 1863, he was condemned and ordered before a Retiring Board and found physically unfit for further service. He thereupon resigned and since then has served the government in various positions.

Mr. Wheeler's second wife is a member of an old and respected Washington family that originally came from Prince George's County, Maryland. Many ancestors and relatives of hers in the Revolution and in the War of 1812 fought gallantly and heroically to form and preserve this mighty nation.

Mr. Wheeler is especially fond of out-door sports, particularly gunning and fishing, to which he devotes his recreation. He is enthusiastic in rifle practice and a member of the Washington Revolver Association. While he has held a commission in the District of Columbia National Guards, he particularly cherishes his present one of major in the First Regiment of Minute Men - a military organization whose aim, above all others, is to keep ever-green the memory of those heroes that wrested our independence from Great Britain.

LEVI WOODBURY (423.John Hill; 340.John; 246.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born July 30, 1842 at "Ellangowan," Beattie's Ford, Lincoln County, North Carolina, married Clara Bayne, daughter of Dr. John Henry Bayne and Harriet (Addison) Bayne of Prince George's County, Maryland in St. Barnabas Church, Prince George's County, Md., October 27, 1869. Resided in North Carolina and Washington, D. C. died May 2, 1900 in Washington, D. C., buried in Oak Hill Cemetery, Georgetown, D. C. She was born December 6, 1843 at "Salubria," Prince George's County, Maryland.

Woodbury Wheeler received his early education near his home at Beattie's Ford, N. C., from an old schoolmaster, thought by many to have been the famous French general, Marshal Ney. He then entered Columbian College, Washington, D. C. (now George Washington University) and was graduated therefrom with the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

At the beginning of hostilities in 1861, he was commissioned by the Confederate Government a Lieutenant in the North Carolina Heavy Artillery; served throughout the entire war with great credit and when mustered out was a Captain.

After the close of the war, Mr. Wheeler returned to Washington and began a course of law in Columbian, now George Washington, University. At his graduation on June 12, 1867, he received in addition to the degree of Bachelor of Laws, a prize - a gold medal - for his thesis "Our Usury Laws - They Ought to be Modified." In this essay he displayed a depth of knowledge of that oft-mooted subject quite beyond his years. Immediately after graduating from the law school he made a tour of the world, and on his return home in 1868, began practising law in Maryland with office at Upper Marlboro. About a year later, March 19, 1869, he was admitted to the Bar of the District of Columbia.

It was while as a young lawyer in Maryland that he met the noble and lovable Miss Clara Bayne, and soon afterward they were married in the historic old St. Barnabas Church near Upper Marlboro. After his marriage he removed to Washington and began a continuous practice of his profession which was terminated by his death in 1900.

In 1883, Mr. Wheeler took up his father's pen, which death has separated from the writer, and finished and published the latter's "Reminiscences and Memoirs of North Carolina and North Carolinians" - which is now a recognized authority among those interested in the genealogies of the families of the "Old North State." The last few years of Mr. Wheeler's life were spent in compiling "The Testamentary Law of the District of Columbia," which was published in 1898, and was most favorably received by the profession.

Mr. Wheeler was a true type of the Southern gentleman; always courteous and affable; a fond father and devoted husband.

JOHN (425.Samuel Jordan; 340.John; 133.Ephraim; 65.Joseph; 19.Joseph; 4.Thomas; 1.Thomas) was born October 2, 1841 in Murfreesboro, N. C. and died July 7, 1861 in Portsmouth, N. C.

The exceptional brilliancy of this young man's brief career has caused me to depart somewhat from my usual custom in writing the sketches of only those Wheelers who left families.

The subject of this notice finished at the most advanced school near his home in Murfreesboro, N. C., before his fifteenth year, and when scarcely sixteen entered Columbian College (now George Washington University) as a freshman.

His college course was replete with honors for him. While attending Columbian he found time, amid his arduous duties, to contribute articles and letters, under the nom de plume of "Hertford" to many of the leading newspapers of the South.

In 1861, he immediately obeyed the summons to arms of North Carolina - his native state - was one of the first volunteers from Hertford County to enlist in the Confederate Army. His career as a soldier was brief. He followed his company to Portsmouth, N. C.

and while in camp near there was taken ill with a fever from which he died.

The following is an excerpt from his obituary which appeared in one of the North Carolina newspapers:

"Within the whole range of our widely extended acquaintance, we knew of none with brighter prospects for future usefulness and distinction than the subject of this notice.....

"His talents were of a high order, and he wrote with remarkable fluency and at times brilliancy for one of his years. His letters from Washington to this paper were extensively copied, and frequently have we received inquiries asking their authorship. Among his college-mates and associates, he enjoyed large popularity. His stern integrity, of character, unassuming manners, and rare amiability, endeared him to all, and but few who knew him will fail to drop a tear to his memory, when they learn that the grave has so early claimed him as its victim. Truly, 'Death loves a shining mark!'"

"The remains of the deceased were carried to Murfreesboro for interment, accompanied by a detachment of his fellow-soldiers. As the funeral cortege entered the village, the tolling of the church bells brought together a large number of citizens, eager to pay their tribute of respect to the memory of so amiable a youth."

married Ella Virginia Stevens of Baltimore, Md. at Baltimore, July 12, 1886. He died October 7, 1894 at University Park, Colorado, and was buried in Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. Wheeler's early life was spent in Washington, where he attended at first private school for about four years and then public school for a short time. Upon removal of his father's family to Baltimore he entered the public schools of that city and continued to attend until his sixteenth year. Upon reaching that age he was granted a license to preach.

Mr. Wheeler then travelled as junior pastor on a circuit just outside of Baltimore and under the jurisdiction of the Baltimore M. E. Church. Afterward he took a course at Pennington Seminary, N. J., on the completion of which he removed to the Nebraska Conference M. E. Church. Here he labored until his marriage, and on returning to Nebraska, added the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction to his duties. Ill-health, however, prompted his return East and on arriving in Philadelphia he joined that conference of the M. E. Church. Soon afterward he built the West York Street M. E. Church, one of the most desirable and prosperous charges of the conference.

After a few years spent in Philadelphia, however, his health became so impaired that he was compelled to desist from all work. Mr. Wheeler then went to Colorado seeking health, but after a short sojourn there, died.

Virginia, married Henrietta Burgess Mathews, daughter of William Lee Mathews and Harriet Ann (Howard) Mathews

of Glenwood, Howard County, Maryland. Resides at Reliance, Delaware. She was born October 6, 1875 at Glenwood, Maryland.

All the years of Mr. Wheeler's youth were spent in Baltimore and Washington where his father preached as a member of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist-Episcopal Church. When about twenty years old he went to Philadelphia and was employed by the firm of John Wanamaker. During his residence in Philadelphia he was converted and joined the West York Street M. E. Church, and soon afterward was licensed by that church to exhort. From there he went to Pennington Seminary, the co-educational institution of the M. E. Church, New Jersey Conference.

After a brief course at the seminary, Mr. Wheeler returned to Baltimore and joined the West Baltimore M. E. Church, known as Whatcoat. The Quarterly Conference of this church licensed him a local preacher about the year 1891. In the spring of 1892 he attended the session of the Baltimore Annual Conference and received from the Presiding Elder an appointment to Patapsco Circuit, Howard County, Maryland. He then travelled two years, but his health would not stand the strain of such a large work so he took local orders for eight years. After marrying Mr. Wheeler resumed the work, but his wife being a Methodist-Protestant, and a more providential filed opening in this church, he withdrew from the M. E. Church and took itinerant orders in the M. P. Church. By that Conference he was assigned to Felton, Delaware, in 1901; then to Reliance, Del., in 1902.

Mr. Wheeler's early life was spent in Baltimore. There he was educated in the public schools, but took an additional course in the German-English School of that city.

At sixteen he entered the employ of E. M. Lazarus & Co. of Baltimore, who were dealers in lumber. At twenty he went to Cincinnati and while there formed a partnership with Mr. J. D. Landwehr of Cumberland, Md. for the purpose of exporting hardwoods. At first Messrs. Landwehr & Wheeler located their business in Cumberland, but on account of superior facilities they removed to Baltimore, where the partnership conducted business successfully until terminated by Mr. Wheeler's death.

At the age of thirteen the subject of this sketch left public school, which he had attended theretofore, and began learning the art of printing. Upon completing his apprenticeship a few years afterward, he was appointed to a position in the Government Printing Office, but through a change in the administration he lost his position and then went in the printing business for himself. This he carried on for six years, after which he was reappointed to the Government Printing Office. First Lieutenant JOHN P. Throughout every phase of the operations, First Lieutenant WHEELER went about tirelessly synchronizing the activities of his unit and succeeded in constantly improving its dispositions. The competence and exceptional ability displayed by First Lieutenant WHEELER reflect great credit upon himself and the military service. Entered military service from Texas.

LAREDO OFFICER BECOMES ONE MAN PATROL

WITH THE 9TH ARMORED DIVISION IN GERMANY -- First Lieutenant John P. Wheeler Jr., of Laredo, Texas, learned there was an enemy tank in position near Wellersheim, Germany, as his company of the 19th Tank Battalion was storming through the area so he became a one-man reconnaissance patrol. Dismounting from his Sherman tank, Wheeler approached the crest of a hill and observed the camouflaged vehicle waiting for the kill.

He adjusted fire of the tanks under his command and guns fired by First Lieutenant Frank P. Taccarino of Louisville, Kentucky, and Sergeant John Carrol, Jr., of Gunnister, Pennsylvania, scored direct hits. The badly beaten Nazi tank limped away under a hail of more shells from the 19th Tank guns. The action cleared the way for the task force to move into Wellersheim.

Lt. Wheeler's wife lives at 2019 Guerrero St., Laredo, Texas.

WITH THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION ACROSS THE RHINE--Company C of the 19th Tank Battalion, was attacking Wellersheim, Germany, which was thought to be a German Regimental Command Post. The enemy was well dug-in.

From its position before the town, the Company, commanded by 1st Lt. John P. Wheeler, slugged it out with enemy anti-tank and tank guns and fought off infantry armed with Panzer Fausts until the enemy had begun to pull out.

In the fight, C Company emptied its basic load of ammunition four times before the Germans decided they had seen enough. It was then that Company C, with infantry support, was able to move into the town.

Lt. Wheeler's wife lives at 2018 Guerrero, Laredo, Texas.

Wellersheim was the hottest spot encountered by Combat Command A of the Ninth Armored in its drive to the Rhine. The Ninth Armored's drive was climaxed by the spectacular seizure of the bridge at Remagen.
